

WAR DEBT DEFAULTING ROCKETS OVER BILLION

McAdoo Proposes Commission To Negotiate New Pay Agreements.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP)—As war-talk echoed over Europe today, default on debts owed the United States from World War days skyrocketed over the billion dollar mark for the first time.

The debtor nations are barred, under the Johnson act, from obtaining any further financial assistance in this country. But the unpaid cost of the last war and threats of a new conflict, have revived discussions of the entire debt problem in congress.

A compilation by the treasury disclosed that if congress sets up a war debt commission—proposed by Senator McAdoo, democrat, California, to review the question and seek a final and lasting settlement—it will grapple with a total debt of $13,670,067,301.28, of which $1,046,795,092.32 is in default.

Unless the debtor nations resume semi-annual installments on which they are now, with the exception of Finland, repeatedly defaulting, a new agreement is made, the default total will continue to mount at the rate of approximately $200,000,000 annually. Payments due June 15 total $138,789,042.41.

Seeks Debt Committee.

McAdoo, who was secretary of the treasury at the time of the default, was contracted, would establish a nine-man commission named by the President, vice president, and speaker of the house with authority to negotiate new agreements, subject to approval by congress.

But both Chairman Pittman, democrat, Nevada, of the senate foreign relations committee, and Senator Johnson, republican, California, are opposed to the proposal on the ground that it would be an admission to the world that the United States was prepared to make further "compromises."

Despite previous agreements scaling down the total owed by 15 European nations which funded their debt, the latest official treasury figures show they are obligated for $12,650,334,230.77. In addition Germany now owes $1,232,250,360.05 and the unfunded debt owed by Armenia, Nicaragua, and Russia amounts to $375,442,770.58.

Germany is in default on obligations totaling 106,350,000 reichsmarks (approximately $75,540,000) for payment of army of occupation costs and mixed claims awards.

Amount of Defaults.

Other European nations have defaulted on the following amounts: Belgium, $404,880,233; Czechoslovakia, $9,584,149.78; Estonia, $2,611,886.45; France, $250,292,292.82; Great Britain, $532,803,958.83; Greece, $4,426,507.85; Hungary, $290,381.27; Italy, $47,853,383.64; Latvia, $961,995.14; Lithuania, $776,819.97; Poland, $32,535,985.55; Rumania, $3,543,750.40; and Yugoslavia, $1,150,000.

With Germany excluded, the default total $971,255,092.32, of which $270,166,110.59 is in unpaid principal. $623,178,280.70 in unpaid interest, and $74,912,701.03 is unpaid under moratorium agreement annuities.

Payments Coming Due.

Payments due June 15 (including an installment due from Greece on May 10) are:

Belgium, $9,142,453.88; Czechoslovakia, $1,682,512.78; Estonia, $22,830.29; Finland, $104,315.50; France, $74,787,725.59; Great Britain, $55,670,785.05; Hungary, $37,410.66; Italy, $15,641,593.38; Latvia, $134,985.29; Poland, $4,689,039.71; Rumania, $1,643,750.05; Yugoslavia, $350,000; and Greece, $332,857.03.

der the original settlements and the moratorium agreements $475,409,176.49 on principal and $1,313,913,008.79 on interest.

Prior to the funding agreements, the United States was paid $281,090,306.99 on principal and $671,354,430.02 on interest. Of the grand total of $2,747,867,042.89 received, Great Britain has repaid more than two billion.

DEBTS NOW DUE U. S.

BY FOREIGN NATIONS.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP)—Foreign nations now owe the United States $13,670,067,301.28 in debts chiefly contracted during or immediately after the World War.

The latest treasury compilation lists the amounts as follows:

Armenia, $21,508,408.26; Austria, $25,308,429.72; Belgium, $423,679,692.37; Czechoslovakia, $1,654,483,256.97; Estonia, $18,969,792.79; Finland, $8,544,349.71; France, $532,803,958.83; Great Britain, $4,500,595,301.20; Greece, $33,281,566.01; Germany, $1,232,250,360.05; Hungary, $21,583,303.19; Italy, $2,014,065,749.13; Latvia, $7,807,509.81; Lithuania, $78,985,285.35; Nicaragua, $451,386.28; Poland, $32,535,985.55; Rumania, $3,543,750.40; Russia, $350,000; Yugoslavia, $1,150,000.

BINGHAM CONFIDENT

WAR NOT IMMINENT

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP)—A belief that war is not imminent in Europe despite the Franco-German tension was expressed today by Robert W. Bingham, American ambassador to Great Britain, after a series of White House and State Department conferences.

"The situation is dangerous and trying," said the envoy, who is home on leave, "but I do not think there is danger of an immediate armed conflict."

ENGLAND MAY DEMAND TROOP WITHDRAWAL

Anthony Eden and Lord Halifax, English negotiators at today's conference of Locarno signatories to return to London for a consultation with the cabinet.

War as a solution was never considered at a meeting of four members of the violated Locarno pact, but Eden, British foreign secretary, contended France's desire to punish Hitler by sanctions or otherwise might lead to war.

Premier Albert Sarraut's quick rejection of Hitler's offer of peace pact negotiations, criticized in parliament as too hasty, appeared to make a compromise impossible. The premier today expressed a willingness to negotiate without mentioning the evacuation of the Rhineland, but said it was impossible to talk while "violence" reigned.

Sarraut and Foreign Minister Pierre-Benoite Flaminio told the lower parliament the world must turn to war "if the will of the strong can destroy treaties."

"The French government," said Sarraut, "does not reject any negotiations which can consolidate future peace and improve Franco-German relations in the framework of a peaceful European system. But France cannot negotiate under the domination of violence and the repudiation of signatures freely exchanged."

Britain Conciliatory.

Flaminio at the Locarno conference earlier notified Britain, Italy and Belgium that the French government would refuse to negotiate until Hitler is punished or the Rhineland evacuated.

Great Britain failed to follow France's lead. Youthful Eden in the quiet, famous clockroom of the Quai d'Orsay, far from marching troops on the banks of the Rhine, stood firm.

Belgium cast her lot with France and even Italy promised full moral support despite her own embarrassing position at Geneva.

Sanctions might be asked by France, but Flaminio purposely specified at the opening of the conference that no decision should be taken and no definite program debated to avoid a wide open split while France and Britain were still far apart.

Premier Paul Van Zeeland, of Belgium, and Vittorio Cerutti, the Italian ambassador to Paris, represented their countries. The Locarno statesmen were aided by more than a score of advisers.

Eden was believed to have argued for a thorough consideration of the German peace treaty offer before considering taking drastic steps at Geneva.

Flaminio Is Firm.

A member of the French delegation said Flaminio told Eden in conference that France was ready to "engage all her material and moral forces to obtain justice," if she is accompanied by the other signatories to the Locarno pact.

Flaminio, adopting a "firm tone," asserted that France counts on being able to call for total assistance from the guarantor states "even if it means military measures" if the Locarno pact "will have been condemned Germany," the official said.

The French foreign minister emphasized, it was said, that "France is resolved to start negotiations on the possibilities which the Treaty of Versailles and the Treaty of Locarno offer to her" to force demilitarization of the Rhineland.

Sarraut Appeals to Solons.

After Flaminio failed to get a promise of British backing to punish Hitler, Premier Sarraut made a speech on the crisis to the chamber of deputies seeking to gain sympathy for the government's stand.

"Beyond doubt the violation of the demilitarized zone affects our security," he said, "but it affects even more gravely the future of European peace, the destiny of the organization of collective security, and the fate of the League of Nations. Let no one in Europe deceive himself."

"But in recalling these facts, let us clarify the position which we have taken. We have placed ourselves in the framework of the League of Nations, whose fate will hang in the balance in the near future."

"We appeal to the signatories and guarantors of the Locarno pact because it is the validity of treaties themselves in international affairs which is about to be decided."

"Who hereafter will preserve any faith in the value of treaties if only the will to do so is needed to destroy them?"

Military Alliances Again?

"If that be so, then we must return resolutely to military alliances, to rearmament, and—let us recognize it—to war, which will be brought down upon us by the strongest nations at the most favorable moment."

Sarraut, asserting Hitler spoke to the French people through the head of their government, Saturday, talked "to the German people." Deputies cheered when he mentioned the horror of the World War.

The French general staff is understood to feel that if there must be war, it wants it now, rather than later when Germany will be ready.

General Louis Felix Maurin, minister of war, reported to the general staff that if four military classes were recalled France would have an army 1,000,000 strong and could "take and hold the Rhineland."

An official communiqué on the Locarno talks said Foreign Minister Flaminio "made it clear that the object of the meeting was to exchange information and to define the situation, but no resolution will be proposed and no decision will be taken before the League council meeting."

The strong radical-socialist party pledged its support of the government stand in the crisis.

GERMANY UNDECIDED

ON ATTENDING PARLEY.

BERLIN, March 10.—(AP)—Germany's decision on whether to attend a meeting of the League council Saturday to consider a French plea to evacuate the Rhineland, the Locarno treaty was shrouded in uncertainty tonight.

The German government contends a letter from Dr. Joseph A. C. G. Avenol, secretary general of the League, intimating it of the French appeal, does not contain an invitation.

Avenol wrote, "Should the German government, as a signatory to the treaty, desire to participate in an examination of this question by the council, it should be grateful for being thus notified."

Expect Invitation.

But Germany holds she is no longer a signatory to the Locarno pact since formation of the League.

Germany believes council members should agree among themselves to instruct the council on their behalf to invite the reich government to send representatives.

The foreign office here professes to see no other possibility emerging from the impasse than for the council to adopt a motion inviting Germany. Neutral diplomats in Berlin made no secret of their belief that Germany would "face the music" at Geneva.

Germany expressed gratification officially at Great Britain's attitude in the Locarno pact, but would not consider Adolf Hitler's proposal of new treaties as a substitute for Locarno.

Ne light was thrown today on Germany's position in regard to participation in the east.

Unlike western Europe state bordering Germany, those in the east would not be invited to sign bilateral non-aggression pacts with the reich.

With the Polish-German nonaggression pact as a model, Germany offers similar bilateral treaties to Czechoslovakia and Lithuania.

No Russian Pact.

When asked whether Latvia and Estonia, although not directly contiguous to Germany, might come in the arrangement, a foreign office spokesman replied: "Now that Lithuania is to be invited why not the other Baltic border states?"

David asked George, World War premier, told common: "I do not think France is in a position to point a finger of scorn at Germany in regard to treaty obligations."

"Germany has been reckless and rash and has broken a treaty but in a court of equity she could call in evidence any single word which would provide some mitigation of her guilt. Even after Locarno, which was intended partly to provide a basis for disarmament, France increased her armaments."

The labor party asked the government to accept Adolf Hitler's peace proposal to submit to the League of Nations. Premier Stanley Baldwin had the opportunity of informing King Edward of the situation at Buckingham Palace, but declined to do so.

NAZI PLANES REPORTED OVER FRANCE.

STRASBOURG, France, March 10.—(AP)—Three Nazi planes were reported to have flown today over French Rhineland fortifications, reinforced over the week-end by 50,000 troops.

Military headquarters at Metz was informed that a German observation ship hovered over Montmedy early today and that two similar planes flew over Kanfen and Veckring in the afternoon.

Some officers said they were convinced the Germans are seeking a view of French troop movements, officials would give no ground. "We have been believed to have come from Trier."

The French general staff, meeting at Metz, discussed "strong measures" to prevent such flights by German planes, following the sighting of one yesterday over the fortress at Thionville. This craft was pursued back to the German border by French planes.

Parish churches of French frontier provinces were crowded today with women and children praying that there might not be another war. These people had heard rumors that old imperial regiments, stationed in Alsace before 1914, have been revived in Adolf Hitler's Rhineland army.

HEAVY WAR EQUIPMENT DRAWN INTO RHINELAND.

COLOGNE, Germany, March 10.—(AP)—Heavy combat equipment has been drawn into the Rhineland by Germany, it was learned today.

Cologne, it was disclosed, has one of the biggest garrisons with more troops than were officially admitted to it. It also is an important center for heavy artillery.

Several batteries of mobile, long range guns and howitzers of the third battalion of the 62nd artillery, formerly the Detmold machine gun companies, were discovered quartered in a slaughterhouse on the edge of the city. A nearby school building has been vacated for the men to sleep on straw between rows of desks.

How many other such detachments are in the former demilitarized zone is unknown.

Sale of all of yesterday's editions of French newspapers was forbidden. The circulation of foreign papers has been banned enormously as the border people, who are more concerned than other parts of Germany about foreign reaction to Adolf Hitler's step, rushed to the newsstands.

Foreign residents here said tanks and armored cars have been brought into the zone secretly at night.

German corps commanders began their first inspections of the troops and the public was allowed to witness the reviews.

LOCARNO CRISIS SERIOUS.

GENEVA, March 10.—(AP)—The convocation of a session of the League of Nations council in London Saturday instead of in Geneva created a shock in international circles here last night and was swiftly interpreted as meaning the "Locarno crisis" remains serious.

Rechts received here coupled with Premier Albert Sarraut's speech today in Paris gave rise to the impression the French had stiffened their attitude and are insisting upon sanctions against Germany, or at least a "symbolic" withdrawal of German troops from the Rhine before undertaking negotiations for a new Locarno treaty.

The fact that Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Lord Halifax, British envoy, wished to consult the British cabinet was interpreted to mean that the French attitude was such that a new British cabinet meeting was necessary to meet the changing situation.

COMMONS APPROVES HUGE ARMS PROGRAM

realized that the situation resulting from Germany's tearing up of the Locarno pact by remilitarization of the Rhineland, a so ticklish holding the meeting here, as well as surmounting the transportation difficulty, give the government instant contact with developments.

Authoritative quarters expected the different atmosphere in London might aid a solution of problems facing the powers but stated, "That remains to be seen."

It was pointed out that the Germans might be more willing to come to London for the council meeting than to go to Geneva. The decision it was asserted, fully expected Germany to be represented at Saturday's meeting of the council. It will be the fifth meeting of the council to be held in London since formation of the League.

The house of commons was informed of the developments by Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer. In winding up defense debate he stated he was making a statement with the view "of the danger that rumors from unauthorized sources might mislead the house."

Locarno Meet Thursday.

Chamberlain announced a meeting of the Locarno powers will be held Thursday at the foreign office, after which the League council will meet Saturday.

In London meetings, he said, are taking place "for further convenience" following the decision of the British delegates in Paris that it was "desirable" that they return to consult the government.

An alarming picture of Germany being driven toward war because of internal conditions was drawn during the debate by Winston Churchill.

"Several millions in Germany who were unemployed found employment in armaments manufacture since the armed forces," said Churchill, "On the other hand, the whole structure is supported by borrowed money and the financial situation is such that it cannot go on for indefinitely. It cannot go on but how can it stop?"

"A terrible dilemma lies ahead for the most peaceful minded government of Germany, if they go on there is bankruptcy. If they stop there is tremendous unemployment."

Germany Defended.

David Lloyd George, World War premier, told common: "I do not think France is in a position to point a finger of scorn at Germany in regard to treaty obligations."

"Germany has been reckless and rash and has broken a treaty but in a court of equity she could call in evidence any single word which would provide some mitigation of her guilt. Even after Locarno, which was intended partly to provide a basis for disarmament, France increased her armaments."

Street Car Operator Wins Award For Safety, Efficiency Two Years

F. G. Brock Scores Highest Rating Ever Made in Contest.

For the second consecutive year F. G. Brock, street car operator on the East Point-Hapeville-College Park line, won the prize awarded annually by the street car company to the operator having the highest efficiency record.

The award was made last night at the annual meeting of Atlanta's trainmen, which was held in the transportation building on Piedmont avenue. Brock scored 98 of a possible 100 points, the highest record ever made during the nine years the contest has been conducted.

He was presented a gold watch and a uniform instead of the supervisor's gold medal, which he already had won for his record in 1934. F. L. Butler, vice president of the company, who presented the award and cited about 90 other operators for their "general efficiency" rating commended Mr. Brock for his courtesy, neatness, accuracy and punctuality.

Four Prize Winners.

R. M. Clark, another city operator, scored 97 1/2 points, only one-half a point below Mr. Brock, and the second highest score ever made. A. G. Gentry and A. W. Langley won third and fourth places, respectively. All these operators were awarded prizes.

Additional operators presented certificates of excellence, J. K. Nicholson was named as the best intermediate operator; J. O. Fuller, best extra-train operator; L. S. Lane, best feeder bus operator; H. H. Freeman, best conductor; A. D. Walker, best coach operator; and H. N. Allen, best motorman.

Best of the Year.

Mr. Brock is 48 years old and lives at 531 Harden avenue, College Park. He has been with the street car company continuously for 18 years.

Basis of Award.

The award was based on safety of operation, courtesy, neatness, accuracy and punctuality. Careful records of the work of all operators were kept, it was said.

In referring to the efficiency shown by the 625 operators of Atlanta's street cars during 1932, Preston S. Arkwright, president of the company, especially commended the men for the safety and the loyalty with which they operated cars during Atlanta's ice and snow storms.

Certificates Winners.

Those who were awarded certificates of excellence were: W. A. Johnston, J. H. Helms, R. D. Rogers, J. C. Davis, J. J. Born, H. T. Bradford, W. J. Henry, B. D. Freeman, C. L. Elliott, H. W. Fiery Bombs To Rain Behind Lines In 'Next War,' Col. Prentiss States

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP)—A high ranking army official today went on record with a prediction that civilian populations far behind the battle lines will be bombarded with a rain of fire-spreading bombs in "the next war."

Lieutenant Colonel A. M. Prentiss, of the chemical warfare service, describing research and development of military incendiary materials in the semi-official publication of the Society of American Military Engineers—"The Military Engineer"—concluded that "in future wars" they will assume "increased importance" in crippling and destroying industries.

Prentiss asserted that many incendiary devices and materials, were not used in time to determine their worth in the World War, but with progress made in research since then the "next war" will be a different story.

Citing that one German Zeppelin dropped 80 fire-spreading bombs in a raid over London in 1915, Prentiss argued that by using planes "it is now possible to reach large and vulnerable incendiary targets at practically any point in the theater of war."

White phosphorus, which ignites spontaneously and burns vigorously when exposed to the air, was used by the Americans, British, French and Germans in the World War against troops, to set fire to woods and grain fields, and against planes and balloons.

"When scattered from overhead bombs," Prentiss said, "the phosphorus rains down as flaming particles, which stick to clothing and could not be brushed off or quenched. The larger particles quickly burned through clothing and produced painful burns that were slow and difficult to heal."

Prentiss said one of the most effective fire-spreading materials developed since the war was a destructive liquid containing various chemicals, oils and TNT.

"A satisfactory, spontaneously inflammable liquid has a great field of application from aircraft," he reported, "for not only should drop-bombs filled with a liquid prove very effective in reaching large areas of cities of light wooden construction, but by regulating the ignition to occur after the lapse of sufficient time for the incendiary liquid to reach the target, such bombs could be sprayed at night from low-flying planes over relatively large areas with tremendous effectiveness."

"On the other hand, the military airplane has opened up a vastly larger field of application for incendiaries in the areas behind the battle front, and in the hinterlands of the belligerent."

"To an ever-increasing degree, the successful waging of modern war depends upon the industrial organization of the nation. The enormous demands for military material. It is, therefore, not at all unlikely that in the wars of the future, military operations will be carried on far into inland territory."

CUTTEN INDICTED FOR TAX EVASION

$414,525 Shortage Charged to Grain Operator, Now Confined to Bed.

CHICAGO, March 10.—(AP)—Arthur W. Cutten, internationally known grain operator who is seriously ill, was indicted today by a federal grand jury on charges of evading income tax of $414,525.54 in 1929.

Shortly after Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward issued warrants for the arrest of Cutten and William E. Gatewood, an "economic tax consultant," who was indicted with him, arrangements were made for the famous speculator to surrender at his hotel apartment tomorrow and sign a bond for $35,000.

MILTON M. GUTHRIE PASSES AT HOSPITAL

Short illness is fatal to Atlanta manager of Casket Firm.

Milton Merritt Guthrie, manager of the Atlanta branch of the National Casket Company, died yesterday morning at a private hospital at the age of 46 following a short illness. Mr. Guthrie was the son of F. C. Guthrie, of Nashville, Tenn., second vice president of the National Casket Company, and was widely known among funeral directors and casket manufacturers throughout the country. He lived at 935 Stovall boulevard, N. E., and was manager of the branch here since May, 1926. He was a member of the Shrine and the Elks. A native of Kentucky, Mr. Guthrie had spent most of his early life in Nashville. He was a former student at Virginia Military Institute and the University of Tennessee. Besides his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Guthrie, he is survived by his wife and a brother, W. Hardin Guthrie, of Nashville, Tenn. The body was sent at 9 o'clock last night to Nashville for funeral service and burial today. Brandon-Bond-Condor was in charge.

DETECTIVE'S CONDITION IS GRAVE AT HOSPITAL

City Detective W. D. Martin, partner of D. L. Taylor on the homicide squad of the police department, was reported seriously ill of pneumonia at Georgia Baptist hospital last night. Martin was taken to the hospital Saturday and since then complications have set in which have made his condition serious, according to physicians.

2 BOYS RECOVER BODY OF FATHER

Sons Eligible To Receive Reward Offered For Troup Farmer.

LAGRANGE, Ga., March 10.—(P)—Discovery of their father's body in Chattahoochee river made two Troup county boys eligible for a $50 reward. James A. Hall Sr., Ware, Mobile roads farmer, had been missing since February 24. Tracks were found near the river, indicating he had slipped into the stream. A protracted search for the body for days was unsuccessful. The county commissioners posted a reward of $50 to spur the search. The two sons, James Jr. and Bob, saw the body as it rose to the surface of the river. They had been dragging the river bottom, aided by dozens of neighbors.

RECEIVER REQUESTED FOR MOBILE BOND DEBT

MOBILE, Ala., March 10.—(P)—W. Otis McMahon, Mobile real estate broker, today filed a taxpayer's petition in federal district court asking appointment of a receiver for one year to liquidate and refinance the bonded indebtedness of the city. Mobile without increase in municipal taxes. McMahon's action was in the form of a petition of intervention in the suit by Marx & Company, of Birmingham, in which a $50,122.22 verdict was awarded against the city for defaulted paving bonds in 1933. The petition set out that more than 80 per cent of $9,700,000 bonded indebtedness of the city was for public improvement ventures and suggested a compromise of 50 cents on the dollar in liquidation of these debts. Of this debt, the petition stated, $2,800,000 is in default and the city has a further debt of $3,000,000 in notes or interest past due on bonds. No general receiver was sought, but a supervisor to liquidate debts under jurisdiction of the court.

DIAMOND THEFT BELIEVED SOLVED

Dothan Laundry Truck Driver Arrested in Blakely Robbery. BLAKELY, Ga., March 10.—(P)—Solution of the mysterious theft of diamonds worth about $3,000 from the home of Mrs. S. G. Maddox, prominent Blakely resident, was announced today at the sheriff's office. Deputy Sheriff W. J. Howell said that an investigation begun by Sheriff Sid Howell on December 2, 1935, the day of the robbery, had led to arrest of a 43-year-old man listed by the deputy sheriff as A. J. Buckhalt, Dothan, Ala., laundry truck driver. Sheriff Howell was in Dothan today on a further study of the case. Deputy Sheriff Howell said "the missing stones were found in various places, some in Fort Gaines, Ga., some in Fort Wayne, Indiana, and some in Dothan. Buckhalt aided us in locating them."

BUCKHALT RELATIVE ARRESTED AT DOTHAN

DOTHAN, Ala., March 10.—(P)—Carl Dean, a relative by marriage of A. J. Buckhalt, held in Blakely, Ga., in connection with a $3,000 diamond theft, was arrested here today on charge of receiving and concealing stolen property. Sheriff Sid Howell, of Early county, Georgia, who came here to investigate the case, said all of the 34 missing diamonds have been recovered. Buckhalt drove a laundry wagon for a Dothan concern.

FAT CATTLE DISPLAY PLANNED AT ALBANY

ALBANY, Ga., March 10.—(P)—The third annual fat cattle show sponsored by the Albany Chamber of Commerce, will be held at the Dougherty county stockyards April 7 and 8. County Agent A. E. Gibson is having the barn and pens put in shape for the show. He has announced that facilities for handling the cattle will be much improved this year. A special committee has been appointed to pass on the eligibility of cattle to be exhibited, with a view to eliminating common grades.

GLENN FAGAN NAMED SHERIFF IN PEACH

FORT VALLEY, Ga., March 10.—(P)—Glenn Fagan, appointed by Ordinary M. C. Mosley to succeed the late Sheriff E. Briggs Fagan, assumed the office of Peach county sheriff today. Mosley called a special election April 2 to fill the unexpired term, which ends December 31, 1936. Sheriff F. Briggs Fagan was nominated for another term February 27, but the county democratic committee has not yet set another primary.

Georgia Shrimp Visit Florida During Winter

BRUNSWICK, Ga., March 10.—(P)—Like millions, shrimp go to Florida in the winter. This was disclosed today by Milton J. Lindner, investigator for the United States Bureau of Fisheries, who has conducted experiments in tagging shrimp and checking their migrations. He found that Georgia shrimp often traveled 200 miles in the fall and winter, sojourning at St. Augustine, Fla., and Cape Canaveral, Fla. Shrimps are tagged with celluloid discs placed around their stomachs. Lindner said the aquatic returned to Georgia in the spring with their families. One distressing fact found, Lindner said, was the disappearance of large Georgia shrimp during the winter season. They don't return. He reasoned the bulk of the lot were caught in fishermen's nets. Lindner's report showed shrimp one of the major southern seafoods, with an annual catch of around 100,000,000 pounds.

DAVIS LEADS IN RACE FOR CLERK IN PUTNAM

Rain Cuts Vote in Election Held in Wilkes County.

EATONTON, Ga., March 10.—(P)—Unofficial returns from the Putnam county democratic primary today indicated the election of W. C. Davis to succeed the incumbent clerk of court, H. C. Walker, by a vote of 570 to 417.

Mrs. C. B. Callaway, incumbent ordinary, was re-elected, 611 to 353, over her opponent, Mrs. Frances S. Marshall. In the race for county commissioner, H. G. Leavelle, incumbent, with 750 votes, B. E. Gooch with 600 and J. R. Griffin with 544 apparently had won the three places for the board, over P. O. Roscoe, incumbent, with 522, and R. E. Spivey, incumbent, with 442 votes.

For coroner, E. H. Bonner, incumbent, led a three-way race with Sam Horn with 327 votes and E. H. Jones with 233 trailing. Bonner had 544 votes, unofficial returns showed. Officers unopposed were J. M. Gregory, tax collector; S. A. Dance, tax receiver; M. F. Adams, county court judge; R. E. Whitman, county solicitor; and J. S. Paschal, sheriff.

RAIN CUTS VOTE IN WILKES COUNTY

WASHINGTON, Ga., March 10.—(P)—With rain said to have been responsible for reducing the vote in the Wilkes county primary by approximately 20 per cent, unofficial returns from 14 of the 15 precincts tonight showed the following results: G. H. Lunceford, sheriff, leading his two opponents, leading Mrs. M. E. Danner, by approximately 800 votes; T. E. Granade, tax commissioner, leading R. O. Nash by 400 votes. W. Turner Callaway, for county superintendent of schools, leading Mrs. Snowden B. Savage by 200 votes. R. H. Pharr, clerk of superior court; R. O. Barksdale, ordinary, and C. E. Sutton, seeking a second term in the general assembly, were unopposed.

BAPTISTS TO SEEK SCHOOL MEMBERS

Conference at Macon Plans To Enroll 10,000 Annually.

MACON, Ga., March 10.—(P)—Challenged to aid in enrollment of 10,000 new members annually for five years, Baptist Sunday school delegates headed for home tonight after a two-day state-wide promotional conference here. More than 600 registered for the session. J. N. Barnett, associated secretary of the department of Sunday school administration of the Southern Baptist Sunday school board, explained the new setup which the 18 states of the southern regional will organize to carry out the five-year program. "The primary purpose of the five-year plan," he said, "is to enlist every prospective pupil in the district."

4 PROMOTIONS MADE BY SAVANNAH BANK

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 10.—(P)—The promotion of two officers and the appointment of two employees to official positions was announced here today by William Murphy, president of the Citizens & Southern National Bank. Pierce G. Blitch, cashier of the Macon office of the bank, was elected a vice president with headquarters at the Valdosta office. Mills B. Lane Jr., cashier at Valdosta, was named assistant to the president, with offices in Savannah. Eugene O. Stetson Jr., now in the Savannah office, was elected assistant cashier of the Macon branch. Joseph Harrison was named assistant trust officer of the main office here. Blitch began his banking career with the Citizens & Southern here. He is the son of Rev. W. M. Blitch, former pastor of the Epworth Methodist church of Savannah. Lane is the son of the chairman of the board of the bank. A Fleming Winn will continue as executive vice president of the Valdosta office.

CHAMBER WELCOMES BUSINESS ARRIVALS

Business executives who recently moved to Atlanta were welcomed at the Chamber of Commerce newcomers' breakfast at the Atlanta Athletic Club yesterday morning by Alva G. Maxwell, treasurer of the Chamber, and C. F. Palmer, member of the board of directors. Lewis F. Gordon, chairman of the newcomers' committee, presided. Those attending the breakfast included F. H. Brown, J. R. Brumby, W. F. Ficht, Charles Pfaffinger, E. W. Mason, S. W. Newell, Axel G. Rosin, Howard Selby, John A. Shields, W. W. Snow, S. A. Hart, A. N. Steinberg and James R. Wham. This breakfast was the first of several planned by the Chamber of Commerce as a means of welcoming new business men assuming new duties in this city.

AMERICANISM URGED BY D. A. R. PRESIDENT

Mrs. Becker Delivers Appeal at Savannah Convention.

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 10.—(P)—The training of youth in the principles of Americanism was urged tonight by Mrs. William A. Becker, president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, before the Georgia convention of the organization.

In a ringing challenge to subversive influences working against the American form of government, Mrs. Becker urged the D. A. R. strongly advocates schools to teach Americanism in every public system in the land. Teachers who are patriots and only teachers who would gladly take the oath of allegiance to the United States also are advocated, she said. The organization, she added, urges a helping hand for young men and women to give them new faith, inspiration and courage to meet the problems of today.

Adoption Urged. Along with this program, Mrs. Becker urged every D. A. R. chapter to "adopt" at least five boys or girls and open the way for them to useful life. She said thousands of D. A. R. members will work this fall and winter to awake the nation to a redefinition of the fundamental principles of the constitution.

"Some 7,000,000 unassimilated aliens remain in the United States," she said, "while a corresponding number of our citizens are unemployed. Few cities have Americanization schools, but many have 'workshops' where class warfare is incited and hatred of government is taught."

"National defense is the peace program of the D. A. R. The D. A. R. wants peace, works for peace but a righteous peace and not peace at any price. It believes the best way to maintain peace is through an adequate national defense as laid down by the law of the land."

The first assembly of the convention began at 8 p. m. after the credentials committee and the executive board had held meetings earlier in the day. First feature on the evening program was a group of selections by the Savannah Philharmonic orchestra, followed by the colorful professional band of standard bearers, pages, distinguished guests, honorary state regents, former national officers, state officers and national officers.

MRS. BEESON WRITES LIFE OF LANIER

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., March 10.—(P)—Coinciding with the convening of the annual meeting of the Daughters of the American Revolution in Savannah, it was announced today by the Georgia State College for Women that Mrs. Leola Selman Beeson, prominent as a historian in the D. A. R., had recently published a volume on Sidney Lanier, famous Georgia poet. The volume is called "Sidney Lanier at Oglethorpe." It contains a roster of members of "Thalia," a secret society organized at Oglethorpe, Ga., in 1839, the minutes from 1859 to 1863, and gives information about Lanier and his connection with the organization. Included in the volume are bits of southern history, some not hitherto published.

VETERAN RAILROADER, E. M. MANN, BURIED

Final rites for E. M. Mann, retired railroad engineer and former veteran employee of the Southern Railway, who died Monday, were held at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the Spring Hill chapel of H. M. Patterson & Son. The Rev. W. H. Fann and W. Lee Cuts officiated, and burial was in Powder Springs cemetery. Mr. Mann, until his retirement three years ago, was an employee of the railroad for more than 40 years. He was a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

MORRIS BROWN MARKS 51 YEARS OF SERVICE

The fifty-first anniversary of the founding of Morris Brown College was observed last night following the annual joint meeting of presiding elders and executive board. Bishop W. A. Fountain, head of the sixth district, was principal speaker. The campaign to raise $25,000 for the institution, of which $5,000 has already been subscribed, was extended until April 21.

STATE DEATHS

MISS MINNIE JACKSON. WEST POINT, Ga., March 10.—Miss Minnie Jackson, lifetime resident of West Point, died at a local hospital Sunday. Her parents were identified with the early history of this city. She was a member of the Christian church. Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Charles Cassella and Mrs. Woodson Martin, both of Gadsden.

To My Friends:

I have been in an Atlanta Hospital for some time and I want you to know that this is the reason that I have not called on you in person to solicit your support for my husband, Cal Cates, candidate for Sheriff in the primary today.

Mrs. Cal Cates.

Elected at Carrollton

Robert D. Tysinger, age 28, who was recently elected solicitor of the city court of Carrollton by a large majority over three opponents. He is the brother of Harvey H. Tysinger, assistant United States attorney of the local federal district.

ATHENS TO HEAR GOVERNOR TONIGHT

University Faces Busy Time During Remainder of Week.

ATHENS, Ga., March 10.—(P)—The remainder of this week will be a busy time on the University of Georgia campus. Tomorrow night Governor Talmadge will make an address before the Pioneer and Agricultural Clubs, to which the student body, faculty and general public is invited. His subject will be "Pioneering in Politics." A debate between students of Georgia and Duke University was held this afternoon, and Dr. W. D. Hooper, professor of Latin, also spoke this afternoon at "Book Hour." The subject of the debate was "Resolved: That This House Approves the Social Security Legislation of the Last Congress." Dr. James N. Brawner, of Atlanta, will discuss "Disorders of the Mental Regions of the Brain" before a psychology clinic tomorrow afternoon. Students examinations will begin Friday morning and will extend through Tuesday, when the University will close until the following Monday for the regular spring recess.

PRICE PROBE IS ASKED ON FARM MACHINERY

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(P)—Farm spokesmen urged congress today to authorize a trade commission investigation of farm machinery prices. Fred Breckenman, spokesman for the National Grange, attacked what he called the price of farm machinery manufacturers' "trust."

Hugh S. Hall, of the American Farm Bureau Federation, also spoke for the investigation.

STATE BRIEFS

Many Join Clubs. BARNESVILLE, Ga., March 10.—(P)—J. S. Harden, Lamar county agent, said today 113 boys and girls joined six 4-H Clubs organized in this county during the recent 4-H enrollment and organization campaign. Last year, there were 33 members in three clubs. Cash prizes of $50 donated by Barnesville business firms will be given members doing outstanding work in a group of projects this year.

College Holidays.

DAHLONEGA, Ga., March 10.—(P)—North Georgia College will open its spring quarter with registration on Monday, March 23, and start full classes the next day. Winter quarter ends March 17, followed by a recess for spring holidays for the remainder of the week.

Schools Are Visited.

CHATTAHOOGA, Tenn., March 10.—(P)—M. D. Collins, Georgia state school superintendent, and L. L. Perry, Georgia state school supervisor, visited schools in near-by Dade county today. The superintendent and Perry made addresses to the students of Rossville and Chattahoochee Valley schools.

Many Enroll in Carroll.

CARROLLTON, Ga., March 10.—(P)—Farm boys and girls in 22 Carroll county communities have been enrolled in 4-H Clubs. There are 608 girls and 74 boys in the clubs. Irene Jones is president of the county 4-H council.

Lumpkin Has Funds.

DAHLONEGA, Ga., March 10.—(P)—Lumpkin county commissioners, after their regular meeting yesterday, announced that they have sufficient cash to run the county for 12 months and will collect no taxes during 1936 for county purposes.

Harris Gets Six Bulls.

HAMILTON, Ga., March 10.—(P)—Plans have been completed here for the purchase and distribution over the county of six purebred beef bulls. A group of Harris county farmers met here March 3 and organized a cattleman's association. The county board of commissioners agreed to buy the bulls.

Seed Potatoes Bought.

JASPER, Ga., March 10.—(P)—Farmers in Pickens county have bought about 36,000 pounds of certified seed Irish potatoes co-operatively during the last few days. By buying the seed co-operatively in large lots, Moore estimates that the farmers got the seed for about $100 less than regular prices.

Many Pines Set.

LAGRANGE, Ga., March 10.—(P)—Tanning of hides by Troup county farmers bids fair to become popular, according to John L. Anderson, county agent, who says that several farmers have reported successful tannings. Using methods set forth in the Department of Agriculture's booklet, they have succeeded in tanning cow hides at a cost of about $1.50 each for using hemlockstems and sawdust for purposes. This constitutes a saving of about $10 per hide over the market price.

Postal Receipts Gain. CONCORD, Ga., March 10.—Receipts at the Concord postoffice showed a gain in February of 13.5 per cent over February of 1935. Mrs. Irie B. Owen, postmistress, states.

7 PERSONS HURT IN DUDLEY CRASH

Mrs. Tom Linder Badly Shaken Up in Bus-Truck Collision.

DUDLEY, Ga., March 10.—(P)—Seven persons were injured and a number shaken up today in the collision of a bus and a gasoline truck near here.

The truck driver, whose name was given as Aaron Wester, of Savannah, was believed to have been the most seriously injured. He was thrown through the windshield by the impact. Names of the other injured were given at a Dublin clinic, where they were treated, as follows: J. D. Todd Jr., Vidalia, fractured arm; Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Phillips, Atlanta (2175 East Lake road), facial cuts; J. T. Martin, Reids, Ga., knee injury; W. G. Washington, negro, of the Georgia State Industrial College, Savannah, cuts on hands and head; R. S. Showers, Dudley, broken arm.

Those badly shaken up were listed as T. L. Slayden, McIntosh, Ga.; Mrs. Tom Linder, Dublin; Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Miller, Dublin, Ct. H. Brown, bus driver, escaped injury.

YEGGS RECEIVE $500 FROM OPENED SAFE

Yeggs who knocked off the combination and forced open the door of a safe in the offices of the Atlanta Sausage Company, 914 Howell Mill road, early yesterday morning, came off with approximately $500 in cash, according to police reports. Following discovery of the robbery by G. R. Gluck, manager, when he opened for business yesterday, Captain Ben Seabrook, of the identification bureau of the police department, was called in to make photographs of fingerprints. Detectives Leo Nahlik and J. J. Chester were assigned to the investigation. The thieves apparently entered the place through a rear window, police said.

Indian Chief Solves Tecumseh Mystery

Bones of Warrior Rest on Walpole Island, Ojibway Leader Says.

WINDSOR, Ont., March 10.—(P)—Chief Mee-Mee, of the Ojibway Indian tribe, said today that he knew the answer to the secret of the whereabouts of the bones of Tecumseh, the famous Indian chief who died fighting Americans in the Battle of Moravian, October 5, 1813. He declared that the bones rested at the Soldiers' Club on Walpole Island, Ontario. Their whereabouts have been a mystery to historians.

Mee-Mee said that Chief Shawnoo, warrior comrade of Tecumseh, was instigator of the movement to bring the chief's remains to Walpole Island.

In the dead of night, 33 years ago, or 40 years after Tecumseh's death, three Ojibway braves traveled to Moravian, dug up the bones from the battlefield where he died heroically after the British general, Proctor, had fled, and brought them back to Chief Shawnoo. The three traveled by canoe with the bones.

Chief Shawnoo set up a flagpole over the spot where he buried the bones and flew a union jack from it. When he was dying he asked to be buried seven feet west of the flagpole.

His grandson, remembering Chief Shawnoo's dying request, provided the information which led to rediscovery of the bones. Their whereabouts dug under the flagpole, found the bones covered by a thick section of wood and a piece of birch bark. The pipe of the great chief also was there, Chief Mee-Mee declared.

"Since then the bones have stayed with us," he said.

SECURITIES MEASURE BEFORE HIGH TRIBUNAL

Act Challenged as Instrument to Regulate Individual Conduct.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP)—The 1935 securities act was challenged in the supreme court today as an instrument to regulate individual conduct and defend as being necessary to prevent fraud.

Counsel for J. Edward Jones, New York broker, attacked the law as an invalid delegation of congressional authority and a violation of state rights. The government countered with the contention that congress had full power over the mails and interstate commerce "to protect the public from fraud that is widespread."

James M. Beck, former republican solicitor-general, who is one of the counsel for Jones, will complete his arguments tomorrow. Then the court will turn to another challenged New Deal law—the Guffey soft coal control act.

The state of Washington, in a brief filed with the court today, became the sixth state to support the Guffey measure, which authorizes federal regulation of the coal industry.

"Wildcat" Stock.
Harry O. Glasser, of Tulsa, Okla., representing Jones, told the justices that the "truth in securities" act does not regulate commerce but individual conduct. He added that despite the act it was still possible for "wildcat" stock to be sold through the mails.

Jones sought to register $100,000 worth of participation trust certificates with the commission in 1934. After the commission had questioned some statements in his application, he tried to withdraw his registration. This the commission refused. It was upheld in the lower courts.

Glasser contended the commission had no such authority. He asserted it was on a "fishing expedition," to get other information.

Authority Questioned.
Burns told the court the commission's refusal to permit withdrawal of the registration was based on its rules and was not set forth in the act itself.

Questioned by Justices Butler and McReynolds on where the commission had power to make such rules, Burns replied that it was given that authority by congress.

On the other hand, Glasser contended the commission order was void because it was issued as a newspaper release and not published as a legal document. Later it was developed that not all of the commission's rules are published in the federal register.

"This act," the Oklahoma attorney said, "regulates the conduct of a person who wants to put something in the mail."

"It does not keep fraudulent securities issues out of the mails. If a promoter of a wildcat oil stock scheme tells the truth to the commission, his securities may be sent through the mails and the people will be led to believe that they are good."

"If the security issue is good and honest, but the person registering it makes a misstatement, it can be kept out of the mails."

"That is not purifying the mails," Burns argued. "A dishonest registrant could play fast and loose" with the commission if it did not have the power to forbid the withdrawal of registrations.

Stop Order Issued.
A broker who failed to tell the truth about a stock, Burns said, would tell the commission "I am sorry," and then take back his registration.

Burns and Reed both noted that the senate banking committee investigation had shown a big increase in fraudulent stock sales after the World War.

Reed insisted the "purpose of the act is to regulate the mails and not move until there has been a full disclosure" of facts concerning them.

Burns described the stock issue proposed by Jones as "novel and unusual." With the proceeds, he said, Jones planned to buy oil property and pay the earnings to those participating in the trust.

Beck traced Jones' efforts to register the securities and said the commission had issued a stop order against them because the public understood to be "a fraud order."

"Even the great house of Morgan would have difficulty disposing of an issue under those circumstances," Beck said. He added that Jones had become "outraged" and that was the reason he tried to withdraw his registration.

VOTERS WILL DECIDE COUNTY RACES TODAY

F. Longino and J. A. Ragdale, incumbents, Ellis B. Barrett and Roy LeCraw, will be listed. Vote for two of the three names, the two receiving the highest number of votes winning.

In another block are listed the candidates for clerk of the superior court, J. W. Simmons, incumbent; E. G. Decker and A. C. Corbett, the high vote-getter in this group being elected.

The names of Clarence Bell and Robert Carpenter, candidates for the municipal court judgeship, now held by Bell, appear in a block, and the names of T. O. Hatcock and A. J. Hartley, running for the position in the municipal court held by Hatcock, are in still another block. High man in each municipal court block wins.

The four candidates for sheriff, James I. Lowry, incumbent; J. C. (Mott) Aldridge, Cal Cates and Harry T. Barfield, are listed in another group. High man wins.

Ballots Perforated.
Ballots are perforated between each block to facilitate rapid counting, but this will not assist the voter in casting his ballot. He simply marks through the names of the men for whom he does not wish to vote.

There will be no runners in the democratic primary, unless candidates for a position receive exactly the same number of votes.

Accuse Opponents.
Longino and Ragdale, called the "watchdog" of the county treasury, flatly accused their opponents, Barrett and LeCraw, of being tied by the collar to Edwin F. Johnson, whom they dubbed "the dictator." Johnson is leader of the majority faction of the county commission.

"When the voters speak today and reject us there will be a reformation of the police," Johnson declared.

Both Barrett and LeCraw vehemently denied being aligned with the majority faction. They promised harmony on the board through business administration of all county affairs.

Supporters of Barrett charged Longino attempted to bribe Standish Thompson, recently hired county employee, "to stop fighting Al Ragdale."

LeCraw said his clean record entitled him to the sheriff's office. He said he would give no favors to anyone.

In the sheriff's race, all four candidates declared they will be victorious in the election. Sheriff Lowry said the people want the same efficient service he has given for 20 years, while Aldridge asserted his business and civic record qualified him to supplant Lowry as sheriff.

LeCraw said he had no ticket, promised voters he will give trained deputies the jobs now allegedly held by political allies, and Cal Cates asserted he will enforce the law as an experienced officer.

Cates, at Ormond street, 846 Capitol avenue, S. E. (at Ormond street).

Points to Clean Race.
Pointing to his clean and above-board race, Decker declared criticism of the incumbent clerk of the superior court, Simmons, did not come from him but from the official grand jury presentments which charged the clerk with inefficiency in conducting the affairs of the office. "As an independent candidate, I have selected my deputies for partisan jobs which they will perform efficiently when I am elected," Decker said. "Outstanding members of the bar are supporting me because they want my job."

Simmons said yesterday: "I believe I will be elected by an overwhelming majority because the people appreciate my work and approve my independence in politics. I have become accustomed to the type of opposition I am having in this race."

My opponents have offered no other reason why I should not be re-elected than that they want my job," he said.

Promises Changes.
Corbett asserted he will make changes in the clerk's office to facilitate court action.

Judge Bell, declaring himself independent from all obligations, cited his record as a lawyer and a judge in support of his appeal for election.

Carpenter asked the people to select their own municipal court judge now that they have the chance and stated "I want that job." Hatcock and Hartley also spoke yesterday.

A number of community meetings were held last night.

"No-solicitation" zones around polls are inaugurated in Atlanta for the first time since the ordinance introduced by Alderman C. W. White was passed by council last year. Mayor Key approved it November 6.

Protests Voted.
It prohibits the prospective voter being deluged with cards and "please vote for me" appeals as he attempts to cast his ballot. Penalty for violation is a $50 fine or 20 days in jail or both at the discretion of the recorder.

Nine county officials who are unopposed for re-election are Judge Jesse M. Wood and Solicitor John McClelland, of the criminal court; County Ordinary Thomas H. Jeffries, School Superintendent J. A. Wells; Tax Collector T. Earl Suttles; Tax Receiver Guy A. Moore; County Treasurer Mrs. Mabel Abbott MacNeill; Coroner Paul Donehoo, and County Surveyor Charles (Don) Robert, who qualified to succeed his brother, Eugene Robert.

A statement from L. L. Austin, executive secretary of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' Association, appealing to merchants to urge employees to vote, follows: "Many of the retail stores will be closed until 10 o'clock this morning in order to give everybody connected with the stores an opportunity to vote before reporting for work. Those stores which, because of the nature of their business find it impossible to close, will arrange for

Election Officials Attend Fulton School of Ballots

1,000 Years Is Needed To Pay Garnishment

NEWARK, N. J., March 10.—(AP)—Harry Garfinkel, will need 1,000 years to pay off a garnishment on his salary signed by Circuit Court Judge Newton H. Porter today.

The court ordered him to pay $2 a week from his weekly salary of $20 on a judgment of $104,000 with interest at six per cent.

The Patriotic Building & Loan Association sued Garfinkel and two other defendants to recover the deficiency on two mortgages on foreclosed properties which were sold for $100 each in a sheriff's sale.

Garfinkel, and the other defendants, Emil Garfinkel, and the Specialty Handle Manufacturing Company, took the judgment by default. The garnishment was issued only against Harry.

Garfinkel, and the other defendants, Emil Garfinkel, and the Specialty Handle Manufacturing Company, took the judgment by default. The garnishment was issued only against Harry.

The court ordered him to pay $2 a week from his weekly salary of $20 on a judgment of $104,000 with interest at six per cent.

The Patriotic Building & Loan Association sued Garfinkel and two other defendants to recover the deficiency on two mortgages on foreclosed properties which were sold for $100 each in a sheriff's sale.

Garfinkel, and the other defendants, Emil Garfinkel, and the Specialty Handle Manufacturing Company, took the judgment by default. The garnishment was issued only against Harry.

STURDIVANT AND POOLE RETURN TO OLD POSTS

committee during the trial to defend Sturdivant.

Councilman C. Dan Bridges, chairman of the police committee, asserted that the city council had upheld the investigation and then gave the job of conducting the inquiry to the police committee. He said the verdict was justified under the evidence.

Greeted at Headquarters.
As Sturdivant and Poole met at the station yesterday to resume their duties as commanding officers of the department, each at the station broke into applause.

"Congratulations, chief," Poole said. "Same back at you," Sturdivant countered. "We don't know how to operate a police department, won't we?"

You bet we will," Poole responded. Lieutenant M. A. Hornsby, who acted as chief during Sturdivant's suspension, was transferred to his old station as station lieutenant. It was principally on Hornsby's testimony that the charges were filed and Sturdivant was put on trial.

Ill Feelings Buried.
"I had no ill will toward Lieutenant Hornsby and feel that we can cooperate fully," Sturdivant said.

There were councilman rumblings of a possible attempt to strip the police committee of its control of the department as an aftermath of the Sturdivant verdict, but they apparently had little support.

Councilman Max M. Cuba, second ward, asserted he was surprised to read in the papers that "everybody had kissed and made up."

The mayor said that the investigation has disclosed this fact: "That Chief Sturdivant is very strong among the thoughtful and appreciative members of the public."

ATLANTA POINT SEEN
FOR COTTON DELIVERYPresent Southern Contract of N. Y. Exchange Favored by Textile Merchant.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP)—The present southern delivery contract of the New York Cotton Exchange was said today by W. L. Clayton, Houston, Texas, cotton merchant, as "neither reflecting the value of spot cotton than any contract the exchange has ever had."

Concluding four weeks of testimony before the agriculture committee's investigation of cotton futures trading, Clayton said he opposed elimination of southern delivery or restricting it to one point.

He said he understood counsel for the committee, Alfred S. Wylie, favored return to the old system of delivery on contract in New York alone or if some southern point is preferred that it be Atlanta, Ga.

"I can not conceive in what way a contract for delivery of cotton in Atlanta could protect a cotton merchant in New Orleans or Galveston or Houston or Dallas, buying and concentrating his cotton at Gulf ports for export," Clayton testified.

"Normally this covers half the crop. This cotton cannot be delivered in Atlanta without great waste in freight and handling charges."

The Houston (Texas) merchant asserted a contract providing for exclusive delivery at Atlanta "would be almost as susceptible to manipulation as was the old New York delivery contract."

"If all the cotton passed through one single point, that would be the ideal place for delivery on futures, because the cotton does not have to be moved from the place where it belongs, to some place where it doesn't belong," Clayton said.

"But Mr. Wylie evidently is of that school of thought which holds that delivery on futures contracts should be made difficult and expensive."

The committee tomorrow is scheduled to begin examination of John H. McFadden, of the Philadelphia cotton firm of George H. McFadden & Brothers.

It is estimated that the women of the United States will spend approximately $150,000,000 on beauty items during 1936.

Earl Faces New Suit
If and When He's Found

Robert S. Lee, alias the Earl of Pelham, attorney for the defunct American Bond & Share Co., whose recent visit to Atlanta ended in a fiasco, was made return magistrate was made party yesterday to a suit of J. O. Johnson and the Boomerang Motor Co. Company, The suit alleged Warren C. Lee, his brother, and J. W. Lee, his father, failed to pay for an automobile purchased from the automobile company in 1932.

Warren bought it, the father made the down payment, Warren drove it to Chicago and turned it over to the "earl," the suit avers. The car cost $284 in 1932 and $153 is still owed, it is claimed.

Lee, jointly indicted with Ben R. Bradley, fugitive president of the second and share company, walked out on municipal court deputies marshal recently when he was here for preliminary hearing in federal court. He escaped the sleuths as they sought to serve bail tokens on him for the recovery of furniture he is alleged to have borrowed.

Johnson's suit, filed by G. Seals Allen, attorney, was returned in the May term of Fulton superior court, by which time attorneys hope to locate Lee for service.

RITTER EN ROUTE FOR OUSTER TRIAL
Federal Judge Signs Routine Court Order; Boards Capital Train.

MIAMI, Fla., March 10.—(AP)—Federal Judge Halsted L. Ritter, of Miami, left here this afternoon by train for Washington as the senate began preparation for his impeachment trial on charges of "misbehavior, and for high crimes and misdemeanors."

Spending most of the day at his office in United States southern district court here, Judge Ritter's only official action was to sign an appeal order in a routine case.

He offered no explanation for signing the order, although it was his first official action since the house adopted an impeachment resolution last week and he decided to refrain from all court work pending the senate's action on charges against him.

It was arranged that Federal Judge Alexander Akerman, of Tampa, senatorial jurist of the district, and Judge Louis W. Strum, of Jacksonville, and A. V. Long, of Pensacola, would handle the emergency cases in Miami during the impeachment proceedings.

Judge Akerman is presiding in federal court here now.

LIQUOR CAR CAUGHT
Exciting Chase Staged on City Streets.

Overtaken by county policemen after a chase through traffic-crowded city streets, a car containing 74 pints and 47 half-pints of whisky and 18 pints of gin was captured yesterday afternoon, police records show.

The car was spotted at Courtland and Baker streets by County Policemen S. D. Vaughn and W. F. Whitaker, who gave chase. The automobile drove into North avenue and at West Peachtree and North avenue ran onto a street car, bursting a front tire.

The officers finally overtook the machine in the rear of the Georgia Tech stadium, after it had left the street and started a cross-country jaunt over an open field. One man jumped out and fled, police said.

The driver of the car was arrested and booked on charges of violating the state prohibition law. He gave his name to the two officers as J. E. Conyers, of a North Highland avenue address. At police station he said he was J. E. Jones, of the same address. He was released on $300 bond.

2 FACE LONG TERMS IN TROUBLEHOLDERS
Aaron Hale and Theron Cranston, charged with a series of street car holdups were last night sentenced to serve 20-year terms as a result of convictions in DeKalb superior court.

Hale was convicted and sentenced last night, just 24 hours after Cranston had been found guilty of implication in the holdup series.

Both were charged with holding up operators of East Lake and Ponce de Leon street cars, the robberies netting $45.

JOHN W. EBERHARDT, ATHENS CITIZEN, DIES
ATHENS, Ga., March 10.—John W. Eberhardt, 64, for many years a prominent salesman here, died today. Funeral services will be conducted tomorrow afternoon here at 4 o'clock. Mr. Eberhardt is survived by four sons, Kenneth, Charles, Rufe Eberhardt, of Athens; J. W. Eberhardt, of Fayetteville, N. C.; his mother, Mrs. J. W. Eberhardt, Athens.

SUSPENDED STUDENTS ELIGIBLE TO RETURN
CHAPEL HILL, N. C., March 10.—At least 19 of the 52 students who were suspended from the University of North Carolina here six weeks ago after an investigation of a cheating racket, will be eligible to re-enter when the spring term begins.

The student council announced last night it had ordered this number reinstated, and had denied reinstatement to six others. The other cases are expected to be reviewed by the council within the next few days.

STOCKS CHARGES UTILITY WITH PROJECT 'DEAL'

Offered City More Taxes and To Pay Cost of PWA Plea, Secretary Says.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP)—In a counter-attack on criticism of the New Deal's power program, Secretary Ickes made public today a letter purporting to appeal to Vermont Public Service Corporation had offered several "inducements" to persuade the town of Brandon, Vt., to turn down a $100,000 PWA municipal power allotment.

At the same time the PWA chief accused the Duke Power Company of "deliberate delay" in filing the appeal which would make possible a supreme court ruling this year on PWA-financed municipal power systems.

The PWA administrator distributed what he said was a photostatic copy of a letter from Albert A. Cress, president of the Vermont company, offering to pay $3,300 to reimburse the Brandon town government for expenditures in obtaining the allotment.

The offer, made on condition that Brandon abandon its municipal power project, also consented to a higher tax assessment on company property and lower rates for street lighting.

The letter indicated that the Brandon town board of selectmen, which had voted to accept the PWA offer, was being urged to abandon the plan.

Ickes connected his attack on the two power companies with the statement that the Vermont concern had employed the same lawyers who appeared for Duke in asking the District of Columbia supreme court to block the Brandon project.

PWA lawyers obtained recently an order hearing on the Brandon and nine other contested allotments in the two power companies with the statement that the Vermont concern had employed the same lawyers who appeared for Duke in asking the District of Columbia supreme court to block the Brandon project.

The fourth circuit court of appeals, highest court yet to rule on the Duke allotments, recently rejected the PWA's contention that the $2,850,000 allotment to Greenwood county, South Carolina.

Although the company had announced it would appeal, Ickes said today the action was not official, that the Duke company was not as anxious as it was to press the matter to the supreme court.

In discussing the Vermont company letter Ickes said that although there was a "community of interests," he didn't have a "suspicious nature" and supposed that this was "an isolated case."

The Edison Institute, whose lawyers have aided the individual power companies in the litigation, Ickes termed a "patriotic institution" which was interested in trying to join up in our municipal power projects.

FOG-BOUND VESSEL FIGHTS FIRE INHOLD
Rescue Ship Grounded; Freighter Races 200-Miles for Aid.

BOSTON, Mass., May 10.—(AP)—Fog-bound and afire, the 5,000-ton North German Lloyd freighter Chicago, anchored in Boston harbor tonight while a fireboat which sought to go to her assistance was hard ground on an inner harbor island.

The Chicago was the lower harbor, 10 miles from the city, after a 200-mile race landward. Captain J. P. Miller discovered the fire in a cargo of cotton in the ship's No. 5 hold at 8 o'clock yesterday afternoon while bound from Philadelphia to Germany.

Miller said the blaze remained confined to the No. 5 hold. He will attempt to smother the flames by drenching the hold with water.

It will stand ready to play on the blaze should their services be needed.

COMBINATION RATES ASKED BY RAILWAYS
WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP)—Enactment of a bill to empower the Interstate Commerce Commission to prescribe combination rates for more or more railroads transporting goods between the points was urged today by the senate Interstate Commerce committee.

Frank McManamy, member of the commission, testified enactment would be for the public interest in that it would aid short line railroads in getting business and providing service to shippers.

J. H. Hood, president of the American Short Line Railroad Association, said the issue was one of "life or death."

C. A. Miller, association counsel, explained that a supreme court decision entered each of the railroads by a shipper to the longest possible haul. The bill would enable a shipper to designate the amount of mileage to be handled by each road.

NUDIST ARRIVES FULLY DRESSED

Girl 'Very Embarrassed' Because She Had To Wear Clothing.

NEWARK, N. J., March 10.—(AP) Miss Florence Cubitt, who promised to strip off an airplane here in the nude, arrived fully dressed today and "very embarrassed," she said, because she had to wear clothing.

A large crowd assembled to see the girl arrive from Los Angeles and watched closely as she left the plane but all they saw was a bit of clad knee as she stepped to the ground.

Miss Cubitt said she intended to carry out her promise but was notified en route that airport officials would not permit it, and she had decided to respect their wishes.

Three members of the public morals squad of the police department were on hand, ready to act if they saw anything they judged immoral.

Miss Cubitt, who said she has been a nudist for five years, wore a black dress and hat, and a gray fur coat.

WHEELCHURCH FIGHTS CUT IN CCC CAMPS
Plan To Discontinue Units Protected by Congressman.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—Representative Frank Wheelchur, of the ninth Georgia congressional district, today voiced vigorous protest against expressed intention of the administration to reduce the number of CCC camps in his state and other sections of the country.

Establishment of these camps by President Roosevelt, he believes, is one of the greatest accomplishments of the administration because they have given excellent training to the youth of the nation and have kept many a young boy off the streets and highways.

"The camps have done much for the young men of America," he declared, "because they have given the boys occupations which have not only developed them physically but have aided materially in shaping their character. In addition, the camps have made it possible for the boys to help the world by contributing to their support."

"I cannot praise the work of these camps too highly, and shall do my utmost to bring members of congress to see that sufficient appropriations are made to bring them back to their original strength."

"Having in mind my own state in particular, I believe Georgia should be given preference in the conduct and organization of the camps. The personnel as well as the enrollees should be chosen from the number in which the camps are located."

WOMAN, 40, IS GIVEN 10 YEARS FOR SHOOTING
BENTON, Ark., March 10.—(AP)—Convicted of assault with intent to kill, 40-year-old Mrs. W. J. Marks, of Bauxite, was sentenced to ten years imprisonment today for the shooting of her husband, Mr. W. J. Marks, in a dispute over a piece of land.

Mrs. Marks, mother of an 18-year-old son, claimed self-defense for the shooting of her husband last February 11, when the two met at a public place in front of their adjoining homes.

Mrs. Marks was shot in the abdomen with a .32-caliber pistol, the bullet passing through her lungs and lodging in her hip. She recovered.

LOBBY GROUP TO FIGHT FOR USE OF TELEGRAMS
WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP)—Equipped with an attorney and armed with a stack of law books, the senate lobby committee tonight awaited a turn in court in defense of its power to seek evidence in the message files of the telegraph companies.

It will argue in the supreme court of the District of Columbia tomorrow that this tribunal has authority to obtain the Western Union records from producing original telegrams subpoenaed by the committee. It will ask that a petition for such an injunction be dismissed.

On the other side of the argument, Frank J. Hogan, widely known capital lawyer, will contend that a subpoena for all the telegrams of a single individual is an invasion of privacy guaranteed by the constitution.

POTENTIAL SAVINGS FOR U. S. RAILROADS
CHICAGO, March 10.—(AP)—Millions of dollars worth of potential savings to the railroads of America went on display today in the exhibit of the National Railway Appliance Association.

An "elastic" spike which cannot "creep," alone would save great amounts in maintenance, its makers asserted. Also it would help eliminate the need for spikes made of spring steel and once it has been produced, it remains there, according to its exhibitor.

Another safety device was a grade crossing which could be raised or lowered when not needed. When a train is passing, however, it raises two feet from the pavement the length of the crossing and warns motorists to "stop." Its warning is emphasized by lights.

Twelve Minutes Elapse From Murder to Arrest

Justice, in the form of the Atlanta police department, moved swiftly last night, taking into custody alleged negro slayer, exactly 12 minutes after his victim had died in an ambulance on the way to Grady hospital.

Emmett West, 28, negro, of 588 Rock street, was stabbed in an altercation allegedly with Will Robinson, another negro, of 607 Thurmond street, at 8:15 o'clock last night, according to police.

West died on the way to Grady hospital, and Hospital Patrolman J. J. Elliott called headquarters to broadcast a lookout notice for the slayer.

Car 21, driven by Radio Patrolmen H. G. Brice and M. D. Cartwright, went to a store at Thurmond and Vine streets which Robinson manages, and arrested him within 12 minutes after West had died.

Robinson was booked on charges of murder.

EX-CONVICT HELD IN DOUBLE SLAYING
Powell Indicted in Matrimonial Death of Wife, Mother-in-Law.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 10.—Five days after their battered slashed bodies were found in a Nassau county creek, Marcus C. (Mark) Powell was indicted today for murder in the slaying of his wife and mother-in-law by the Duval county grand jury.

Powell has stuck to his denial, intimating the women met foul play at the hands of robbers after they left home March 1 to attend a movie.

When the 49-year-old man is arraigned tomorrow afternoon, it will be the third time, police records show, he appeared in court to answer a murder charge.

Powell has served portions of prison sentences for slaying, one in Florida and the other in Alabama.

State Attorney John W. Harrell said he would ask that Powell's trial date be set for April 6.

The bodies of Mrs. Howell and her mother, Mrs. Lou A. Spear, were discovered by two fishermen. Each bore head wounds and the abdomens of both had been ripped open.

THREE MEN CONVICTED IN N. Y. 'SNATCH' CASE
NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP)—Three men were convicted today of kidnaping a policy broker whose detention for three days last August touched off a series of fatal shootings.

Their alleged victim, Batista Salvo, said by police to have been a "banker" for Charles "Lucky" Luciano's policy ring, was convicted in January of obstructing justice by refusing aid in prosecution of those who kidnaped him and obtained $9,000 ransom from an associate before he was released.

CLOSURE OF COLLEGE THREATENED IN OREGON
ALBANY, Ore., March 10.—(AP)—A college president's threat to close the institution against a "student dictatorship" and the ouster of a high school superintendent brought rebellions at two Oregon schools today.

The students of Albany College, a Presbyterian school, divided into two factions over the assertion of President Thomas W. Bibb that a "student minority" exercised a "wholesale influence" upon the students.

At St. Helens, 100 miles north of here, all but 21 of 400 high school students are on strike, protesting the failure of the board of education to renew the contract of Superintendent J. R. Austin.

FOLGER WILL LEAVE $2,000,000 TO LIBRARY
NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP)—The will of the late Emily C. J. Folger, died today, leaving a fortune of $2,000,000 to the Folger Shakespearean library in Washington, which was founded by her.

Mrs. Folger died February 21, at Glen Cove, Long Island.

Her husband, who was formerly president of the Standard Oil Company of New York, was reported to have one of the finest collections of Shakespeare in the world, died June 10, 1930. He bequeathed his library to the nation and set up a $100,000 fund for its maintenance by the trustees of Amherst College.

TAMPA'S 'MITE BABY' LOSSES FIGHT FOR LIFE
TAMPA, Fla., March 10.—(AP)—Wee Walter B. Mansell, the mite baby, died tonight after a ten-day fight for life.

Born in a farmhouse near Turkey Creek, a small farming community some 10 miles east of here, he was admitted to Tampa's municipal hospital last night weighing 33 ounces. He had gained two ounces since birth.

NEW ANGLE HINTED IN SHOOTING CASE

'Looking for Something Else,' Says Detective; Anderson Questioning Postponed.

City detectives attempting to pierce the haze of mystery surrounding the shooting of Alvin Anderson, Georgia Tech sophomore, early Sunday morning after a college dance, were reported yesterday to be working on a new angle in the case.

Asserting he was "looking for something else," Detective D. L. Taylor yesterday postponed further questioning of the 21-year-old college student. He would not reveal what the "something else" was but said he may talk with Anderson again today.

Anderson was found on the porch of a residence in Garden Hills early Sunday. He had been shot just below the heart, the bullet piercing a lung and lodging in his back.

According to the story he told police and other questions, Anderson was picked up by two men in a car at the corner of Tenth and West Peachtree streets at 2:30 o'clock Sunday morning shortly after two companions with whom he had attended a dance left him out of their automobile.

After a scuffle in the car, one of the men shot him, and dumped him in front of the house in Garden Hills, he told officers.

The youth's father, V. Anderson, of Cliffside Park, N. J., told police that his son had thrown new light on the case in his talks with him.

Anderson was moved late last night to a private hospital, where attaches said his condition was somewhat better.

DR. FRANK SLATED TO QUIT COLLEGE
Papers Says Wisconsin President To Be Removed or He Will Resign.

MADISON, Wis., March 10.—(AP)—The Capital Times said today that Dr. Glenn Frank will either resign or be removed as president of the University of Wisconsin by June 1.

Following closely on a report that a member of the board of regents was expected to ask for the president's resignation, the Capital Times said it learned Dr. Frank had made a defense of his administration before the board at a closed session today.

The newspaper said Dr. Frank, 41, president of the board, replied to Dr. Frank and told him the university should not pay a president $28,000 a year and asked for a $5,000 reduction.

Dr. Frank was at fault in not taking a firmer stand in the recent controversy in the athletic department.

Friction between Athletic Director Walter H. Meadwell and Football Coach Clarence W. Spears and lack of harmony in the athletic department generally resulted in an investigation by the board.

The sum, the carrier reported in a brief, "has been arbitrarily determined and is much less than the true valuation."

A figure of $17,000,000 was submitted as a just minimum.

HOUSE PASSES BILL ON INCOME RETURNS
WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP)—The house today passed and sent to the senate the "green-slip" providing fines for failure to file duplicate income tax returns for use of state and local tax officials.

The roll call vote was announced as 268 to 76.

The new measure, asked by the treasury, would add a $5 penalty onto the tax of an individual failing to file the "green-slip" duplicate, and $10 to that of partnerships or corporations.

Rail Application Dismissed.
WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission today dismissed an application for double tracking of the Durham & Southern Railroad's connecting lines with the Seaboard Air Lines in Durham, N. C. The commission also dismissed an application of the Norfolk Southern Railroad to operate over a spur track owned by the American Tobacco Company, and extending from Keene Junction to Durham.

Will Address Ministers

Dr. Joseph A. Vance Will Be Honor Guest of Presbyterian Ministers.

Dr. Joseph A. Vance, of Detroit, moderator of the Presbyterian general assembly, U. S. A., will visit Atlanta Presbyterian ministry as the guest of the Presbyterian Ministers' Association.

He will be honor guest and principal speaker at a banquet to be given by Atlanta members of the denomination at 6:30 o'clock Friday night at the Covenant Presbyterian church. Dr. Herman L. Turner, pastor of the Covenant church, will preside. Dr. J. Sproule Lyons, pastor of the First Presbyterian church and a former moderator of the general assembly, will introduce Dr. Vance.

At 12:30 o'clock Friday afternoon, the moderator will address the Presbyterian Ministers' Association at a luncheon meeting in Rich's tea room. The Rev. Peter Marshall, pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian church, will preside.

Dr. Vance is president of the board of national missions for the Presbyterian church and pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Detroit. He has held pastorate at the Woodland Avenue Presbyterian church, Louisville, Ky.; Maryland Avenue Presbyterian church, Baltimore, Md.; Hyde Park church, Chicago, Ill., and the First Presbyterian church at Detroit.

JUSTICES PAY TRIBUTE TO NEGRO EMPLOYEE
WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP)—Chief Justice Hughes and Justice Van Devanter, of the supreme court, today attended funeral services here for Edwin O. Burke, 62, negro employee of the highest court for 13 years.

Burke had served as private messenger to both Hughes and the late Chief Justice Taft.

In several of the justices' messengers, Burke also was a barber. The carefully trimmed beard worn by Hughes was attributed to Burke by his friends.

Chief administrative officers of the highest court also attended the funeral in a negro Catholic church. Most of the justices sent floral tributes.

TENNESSEE ATTORNEY INJURED IN AUTO CRASH
MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 10.—(AP)—Wardlaw Steele, 53, of Ripley, Tenn., former president of the Tennessee State Bar Association, is in a serious condition in a hospital here from injuries received in an automobile accident early today.

The attorney's left arm was badly crushed when his car overturned, colliding with another automobile. Mrs. Steele and their sons, who were with him, were uninjured.

BARROW CALLS OFF VOTE ON ROOSEVELT

and would be glad to receive any objections. A former state legislator, Tom Burrow, said he objected because sufficient notice had not been given the voters.

Former Senator Jack Carriethers, of Winder, then suggested that Linder, De La Perriere, Cravey and Heck be heard from.

De La Perriere said he was not here to advise the committee but that every body he had talked with was opposed to holding the primary tomorrow.

Notice Desired.

"If I were running for office I'd like to feel I would be given notice that my name was on the ticket," he said. "I never heard the Governor say he would be a candidate."

Linder said Talmadge's friends did not want the Governor put in the position of being a candidate on such a ticket without their having been advised of it.

Representative Verlyn Booth, of Barrow county, said he felt the committee "had enough good common sense to know what to do."

Booth said he noticed Talmadge referred in a statement to Barrow as Russell's county, and explained the senator was in Washington and had nothing to do with the planning of the primary.

Former Senator Carriethers said when he first heard of the primary he was opposed to it, but since the committee had acted he favored staying by their action.

State Primary Favored.

Carriethers said he favored a state-wide primary and added: "Then if that man in the governor's office wants to stick his head up, it will be trimmed."

Heck spoke briefly, saying he was customary that a person announce before his name is placed on a primary ballot.

Taking the floor, Mayor Hiram Flanagan, of Winder, said:

"I feel because of the situation affecting the city of Winder, and the county of Barrow, that it is unwise to have this preferential primary."

The mayor did not amplify his statement.

Barrow, a county of 13,000 population, is the home of Senator Richard B. Russell Jr., of northeast Georgia. Governor Talmadge previously had said he was not given sufficient notice of the primary in the home county of Russell, a staunch administration supporter.

Roosevelt Landslide.

Another agricultural county, Seminole, last week voted five to one in favor of President Roosevelt over Talmadge in a preference primary. Proposed primaries in Wilcox and Pierce counties were called off by the county committees for the same reason given today by the Barrow committee.

Following the Seminole primary Governor Talmadge charged he had not been notified ahead of time, but yesterday W. Ellison Dunn, Seminole democratic chairman, said circulars in Talmadge's behalf had been distributed several days before the voting.

Preferential primaries are not binding. The state democratic committee may call a state-wide primary or name delegates to the party's national convention in Philadelphia next June.

Roosevelt followers have called on Chairman Hugh Howell, of the Talmadge-controlled state committee, to call a state-wide primary, or a constitutional delegation to be sent to Philadelphia. Howell has not said what his committee would do.

Like the Barrow committee, a number of other democratic county organizations have asked the state committee to hold a state-wide primary.

EDENFIELD OPPOSES SPECIAL SESSION

KINGSLAND, Ga., March 10.—(AP)—Senator Homer Edenfield, of Kingsland, said in an interview today he did not "care to sign" a resolution requesting a special session of the legislature on the state's financial situation, adding: "They would be unable to agree on an appropriation bill that would be within the revenue."

The state senator said he felt that "the legislature did Governor Talmadge great injustice in adjourning without passing the act. It has placed responsibilities on him never before placed upon the chief executive."

"He had promised to pay the state out of debt and reduce taxes. This had not been done and he could not have been held responsible for the situation which would have been far above the revenue."

Senator Edenfield's district comprises the counties of Camden, Charlton and Glynn.

C. C. DAVIS WILL STUDY FOREIGN LINT MARKET

movement that has led some countries to seek substitutes for American exports. Foreign cotton consumption will have a part in the survey.

Succeeded Peek.

Davis succeeded George N. Peek as AAA administrator, early in 1934, when Peek resigned because of differences with Wallace over policy matters.

The text of a letter written to Davis by the president today, outlining objectives of the survey, follows: "As you well know, the fortunes of American agriculture in the next few years are certain to be closely linked with the world economic situation, and particularly that of Europe."

"The agricultural industry of this country never could have expanded profitably beyond its present scope if it had not found substantial markets beyond our own borders. The shrinkage of these markets following the World War, and particularly following the tariff of 1930, placed the American farmer in a desperate plight from which only such measures as the Agricultural Adjustment Act and the present soil conservation and domestic allotment act could partially rescue them."

Extensive Changes.

"Since 1933, there have been extensive changes in the economic policies of foreign countries and in international trade relationships, and further changes are in prospect. Future plans of farmers of this country will depend in large measure on the extent of their outlets abroad. For that reason, I believe it would be advantageous to them if someone who will have an important part in shaping those plans could survey conditions in Europe at first hand."

"I am therefore suggesting that you, as administrator of the agricultural adjustment and related acts, arrange as soon as possible to undertake such a survey."

"I feel that during the more than two years that you have administered the farm program, it has been brought through its most critical phases. I believe that it will be not only in your own best interests but in the best interests of the American farmer, that you take a little time away from the arduous duties of active administration, and to size up trade conditions in Europe as I have suggested."

"And I feel very strongly that your services to the farmers of this country will be more valuable than ever when you return."

A few hours earlier, the Agriculture Department reported that exports of American cotton during the six months ended January 31, were 40 per cent above those of the same period a year earlier.

The department forecast an increase of about 2,400,000 bales in the 1935-36 world cotton crop to 26,000,000 bales, compared to 23,600,000 in 1934-35. Foreign production was said to account for 1,400,000 bales of the increase.

Hails Board of Regents Kang Teh Begins 5th Year of Reign As Emperor of Manchoukuo State

Number of Subjects and Territories Show Fast Expansion During Past Months; New Railways and Highways Show Progress.

HSINKING, Manchoukuo, March 10.—(AP)—The future of Emperor Kang Teh and the domain over which he reigns by grace of the Japanese army formed one of the liveliest topics of speculation in the danger-laden capital of the Manchoukuo state today as the emperor began his fifth year today as head of the Manchoukuo government.

These four years past have been spectacular material changes in the emperor's realm. His territories have been expanded through the conquests of north Manchuria and Jehol—by the Japanese army. The number of his subjects has increased by several millions.

New railways, new highways, new airways, a new currency, new industrial and commercial centers, have brought economic progress to most of his country. A fine new capital city is rising in Hsinking. It would appear the emperor Kang Teh and those who support his throne had reason to be satisfied.

The ruler of Manchoukuo has not been here for four years. It is only as a high-ranking official that he was installed—by the Japanese army—at the head of the new Manchoukuo government March 9, 1932. Before that he had been a refugee in the foreign concession at Tientsin, known as "Mr. Pu Yi," the former boy emperor Hsuan Tung of China.

Then arose the need of the Japanese empire builders for a great name to place at the head of the regime they were building in Manchoukuo.

That name was found in the person of a Manchurian prince, expelled from Manchuria by Japanese arms. The former emperor of China was extracted from his refuge and thrust once more into the limelight of history.

It was on March 1, 1934, that he mounted the new orchid throne here as Emperor Kang Teh, supported by scores of thousands of Japanese bayonets. Because of that later elevation today's anniversary passed in Hsinking with special ceremonies.

The principal holidays of Manchoukuo are now the enthronement anniversary, March 1, and the emperor's birthday, which is celebrated on the anniversary of his last birthday.

The question asked by most students of oriental affairs today was whether Kang Teh would be taken south to restore the fortunes of old Peking and add to his realm such north China provinces as Japanese military power and political skill may bring once more under a Manchian dynasty.

Until now Japan's responsible military leaders have disavowed any such expansionist plans. But questions persist as to whether or not there will be a restoration in Peking as long as the Japanese army continues its relentless pressure on China's northern provinces.

The Japanese expansionist program on the continent solicits the allegiance of all conservative forces in North China and Mongolia. The Japanese have revived the worship of Confucius and opposed innovations of the Kuomintang, dominant Chinese national government party. But their strongest card is the lure of the restored Manchian dynasty in the person of Kang Teh, especially for the non-Chinese peoples who subject to that dynasty.

The case was set for a full trial on the removal of $7,400,000 in bonds posted by the banks to cover state deposits.

The reading of the affidavit, one of which was from John K. Otley, president of the First National bank, and the taking of the verbal testimony regarding the surety company required a small part of yesterday's session, most of which was given over to the arguments.

SPECIAL SQUAD By Courtney Ryley Cooper

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE. Inspector Sandy Ross, of the Department of Justice, and Special Agent Buck Wasey, motor from Reno to Vinton City in search of information on Sociable Joe Willis, suspected of assisting in armored car robberies. Sociable Joe is wanted by ex-Marshall Titters, at whose home the federal men have called. Sociable Joe admits having wasted money, which he says he won gambling, and which he turned over to Titters to return to the authorities. Sandy and Ross start on their way back to Reno. On a dangerous road, a car crash into theirs, driven by a girl. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT IX.

It was as casual as that—the Federal Bureau of Investigation, with its agencies stretching from Porto Rico to the Philippines, is as closely knit as the subdivisions of a small city. Soon the staccato voice of the director sounded from his home in Washington.

"Hello, Sandy, where are you?"

"Vinton City, just outside Reno. There's a break in the Sociable Joe case."

"Good, have you got him?"

Sandy Ross answered in the affirmative, hastily sketching the events of the afternoon and night. One part of the recital was not easy to give—that concerning Jane Bronson. The director laughed.

"Looked like she put one over on you there, Sandy," said the director. "But some way this girl seemed different, director. And we haven't proved yet that she was the man's moll."

"No, and don't get any preconceived notions about it, Sandy. Use your usual common sense."

The director's jovial, friendly tone ceased; again he had become a hunter of men, with all the necessity for crisp decisiveness which the job demanded. "But don't take any chances with that mob. I'll put out a general alarm on the number of that car and the description you've given me. In the meantime hold yourself and all your men in readiness for a move to another part of the country if any of our agents get a line on that car. Charter an airplane. Keep it ready. Regarding Sociable Joe, question him unceasingly and use your best judgment about following what leads you get. Shadow anybody connected with him. And good luck to you."

However, it was not until two days later, following a period of intense activity in Reno and Vinton City, that Sandy Ross and Buck Wasey were able to properly interrogate the old gambler. They now felt that they possessed the facts upon which to base definite suspicion.

The 48 hours which had intervened since Jane Bronson had disappeared from Pete's garage had, it is true, brought no direct news of her whereabouts or of those of the man with whom she had fled. However, the shield of secrecy which surrounded this pair had begun to crack.

Special agents had established the fact that this man who called himself Hammer and whom the girl had hinted bore the same name as herself had appeared in Reno shortly after the last armored truck robbery. He had possessed plenty of money, and the special squad now knew that the cream colored car which he drove had been stolen from in front of the residence of a New York doctor. The chain of circumstances had tightened about the man, Sandy Ross hoped that it would tighten still more with the interviewing of Sociable Joe.

They had gone to his home, the usual one-story frame dwelling, set on the side of a hill like so many others in this mining camp. Old ex-Marshall Titters was there, acting in the combined role of a guard and nurse, while a special agent sat in the front room of the house, an additional safeguard against an attempt to escape, were Sociable's injuries more feigned than real, and against possible communication with any members of a mob. Both were dismissed as the inspector and his assistant walked into the house. Sociable Joe eyed them from behind a thick curtain of bandages.

"I suppose you know why we're here?"

Sandy began somewhat pleasantly. Sociable Joe eyed them from behind a thick curtain of bandages.

"Well, no, I can't say."

"You remember us?"

"O, yes, you're the G-men—I remember you. Right?" His voice strengthened. "But I told you everything I knew the other night."

"Perhaps," Sandy Ross answered. "But there have been subsequent developments. For instance, Mr. Willis, did you ever know a man named Hammer?"

"Hammer? Hammer?" he seemed sincere enough. "No, I never heard of any one named that."

"Are you sure that you didn't play cards with a man named Ray Hammer?"

"I'm sure of that."

"You said that you won the money which you turned over to me by playing with three men. Wasn't one of them Ray Hammer?"

The old man shook his head emphatically.

"I'm telling you," he said with some asperity, "that I never heard the name before."

Sandy Ross remained pleasant enough, but persistent.

"Then we will drop the name temporarily. Did you know a man here who fits the following description?"

He read the description of Jane Bronson's brother, while Buck Wasey, a silent watcher, catalogued the reactions of the man on the bed. Suddenly the Texan broke in:

"You remember that fellow, don't you?"

A note of defiance came into the old man's voice.

"I might have met a hundred fellows like that, but there's one in particular—and you know which one that is."

The old man twisted on the bed. He had lost his usual loquacity.

"You're trying to hook me up with a gang, and I won't stand for it."

"You're an honest man, I presume?" asked Sandy quietly.

"I pride myself that I am."

"Never offended against the law?"

Sociable Joe waved a hand with something of a return to his usual demerol.

"Now, gentlemen, if you'll except my proclivity for dalliance with the pasteboards."

"Never been arrested, I suppose?"

Buck Wasey interjected.

The old man flushed.

"Why anybody's liable to get arrested, he stammered. "Might park a car too long or break some city ordinance."

Sandy Ross hitched his chair closer.

"This is something more serious, Joe," he said quietly. "Several days ago you made a very clear impression of the fingers of your right hand on a whiteboard glass. This glass was sent airmail to Washington, where it was possible to make a classification against one of some five million criminal fingerprints in the identification unit. I have just received a telegram from the department of justice. Your fingerprints were found to be identical with those of a man named Joseph Marco, arrested in 1912 on a charge of homicide and sentenced eight months later to three years in Cannon City penitentiary, Colorado, on a plea of guilty to manslaughter."

The old man made no answer. The flush was gone from his features; his skin had become ghastly white, his eyes staring. At last Buck Wasey queried:

"Was that the name you were sentenced under?"

The answer was barely audible.

"Yes, that was the name."

"Do you care to tell us about it?"

A weak smile crossed Sociable Joe's face.

"I might as well—you'd find out anyway. I killed my wife. He pulled in his breath with a half-gasp. "A tragedy rather than a crime, gentlemen," said Sociable Joe slowly. "There's nothing to hide. My wife was—shall we pass that?" he queried with a faint smile. "I had a good business in Denver then—long before my gambling days. Really—really thought I'd amount to something. Had my eyes on the law—always liked to hear myself talk, as you may have judged, gentlemen. One day my wife—well, to put it bluntly, she tried to kill me and there was quite a struggle for the gun. She may have pulled the trigger. I may have pulled it. I don't know."

"Everything was blurred—whatever happened, it was an accident," Sociable Joe's voice was steady, but his face was ghastly in its pallor. "And there were witnesses that it was an accident, but she was dead."

"Then you could have proved accidental death or self-defense," inter-

LABOR-SAVING MACHINERY DOES NOT ALWAYS REDUCE EMPLOYMENT

34

Some labor-saving machines have created more jobs for laborers than they displaced with the machine. The invention of the automobile, which has brought a whole succession of other gasoline devices for saving labor, has created work for millions of people who work in the automobile factories, tire factories, rubber plantations, gas stations, garages, auto repair shops, on road-building projects, and a great many other industries that came into existence because of the invention of the automobile. It is ridiculous to say that science has caused all unemployment. It is labor's best friend.

VIII—Sound Effects.

Among those who were helpful to me during my visit in Hollywood was Conrad Krebs, who was an "idea artist" for the picture called "King Kong."

"When 'King Kong' was photographed 'complete' it was done with a figure only about 30 inches high," said Mr. Krebs, "but we also made use of a head of giant size, and of an arm about 38 feet long. The head was large enough to fill a good-sized room. We had an instrument board to move the eyes and ears, and to open the mouth, and lots of fun working on that picture."

"Any seems happy, but she always gives me the impression that she'd include a man."

W. J. Elliot working a sound machine.

When Mr. Krebs found I was interested in the way a great booming noise was made for King Kong, he took me to meet a man who is one of the masters in making "sound effects"—Walter Elliot.

Mr. Elliot was in his laboratory, and gladly took me around to explain some of the "mysteries." He showed me a tank and turned a crank. As he did so I heard the pitter-patter of rain. He adjusted a bolt or lever, turned the crank in the same machine.

The other way, and then I heard the surf of the sea.

Later he showed me two machines which produce the sound of wind by the fast turning of rods. He let me beat on a slide drum about six feet in diameter, which made a noise as of thunder, and he worked what he called a "thunder sheet," a large sheet of metal.

"We can make the sound of rolling thunder here," he said, "but we have never found a good way to make the first clap of thunder without taking the sound from real thunder. We do that by making a sound of a sound track. It is a piece of film which we keep on file to use when we need it for a picture."

Next Mr. Elliot showed me a catalog containing the names of several thousand "sound tracks." These covered such sounds as chopping wood, sawing logs, a baby crying, old gushing, crickets chirping, frogs croaking, and a man blowing his nose. Under the heading of "crows" there must have been at least half a hundred entries. If the sound of a cheering crowd is needed for a picture, it can be obtained from film in the sound effects library. If a jeering crowd, or a booing crowd or a hissing crowd or a laughing crowd is needed, it is there for use.

"Sound effects" libraries are in wide use among the studios of Hollywood. They save the producers of pictures large sums of money, for there is no need to make new sound records when old ones will do as well. The sounds can be woven in with other sounds made while the new picture is being produced.

RECREATION PROJECTS AIDED BY GOVERNMENT

Types of Service Offered by Federal Agencies Is Discussed.

The type of service offered in the field of recreation by various federal agencies was explained yesterday by speakers representing government departments, at the second session of the conference of recreation leaders conducted by the Works Progress Adminstration of Georgia, at Emory University. The discussions were led by Dr. Harold Meyer, of Washington, recreational consultant, community organization for leisure. The speakers at the morning session were: Dr. R. R. Paty, director of the National Youth Administration; Miss Jane Van de Vrede, director, division of professional and service projects, WPA; G. B. Cunningham, of Athens, director of 4-H Clubs; Miss Martha McAlpine, of the agricultural extension service, Athens; Mrs. M'Nita B. Dunwoody, project education director, NYA, and J. H. Gadsby, of the national park service. In the afternoon session, August Fischer, state director of recreation, WPA, discussed the organization of the state WPA program, and Miss Llewellyn Wilburn, of Agnes Scott

College, director of physical education, spoke on "Girls' and Women's Problems." A group of Agnes Scott students presented a demonstration of games and dances. The three-day conference will be concluded today with a discussion of organization and administration of recreation by Dr. Meyer, Miss Van de Vrede, and Robert Campbell, director of recreation, Atlanta district, of WPA, and an outline of special activities. L. Palmer Skidmore, director of the High Museum of Art, will discuss professional and recreational art activities. Mrs. Grace Lee Townsend will discuss music. Miss Beverly Wheatcroft, secretary of the state library commission, will discuss the contribution of libraries to leisure time. At the Tuesday session Dr. Paty described the activities of the National Youth Administration in relation to recreation. He said: "The National Youth Administration did not come into being as a new organization, but as an organization that would help in activities already existing; to try to make it possible for young people to stay where they should be and give them a chance to continue their preparation for life. In the state of Georgia," he said, "there are 2,700 boys and girls in colleges who are available for worthwhile service and who would be of great value to their communities if suggestions were made to the colleges as to the types of activities in the community. This has been done at the University of Georgia and in colleges in Atlanta, but has not been done to the extent it should be in rural areas." Dr. Paty urged the extension of activities of the colleges beyond the campus, and said: "We will never get anywhere in democracy until the public school accepts the responsibility to the community beyond the school age, because their problems are community problems and not simply problems of the boys and girls in attendance at school." Mr. Gadsby outlined the activities of the National Park Service in relation to recreation and described the location and types of parks being developed in Georgia.

Irvin Cobb Plans To Follow Garbo; About To Sign New Movie Contract

Famous Columnist Is Now Sleeping in Bed of Noted Swedish Actress; Declares Acting Business Has Been Great Inspiration.

By BELMAN MORIN,
Associated Press Staff Writer.
HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March 10.—(AP)—Portly Irvin S. Cobb, the novelist, is sleeping in Greta Garbo's bed these days and planning to follow in her footsteps in the movies.

"I live in the house she used to live in and I sleep in the bed she used to sleep in," Cobb explained. "But being a movie star is just pure vanity on my part. I'm just conceited enough to wait until I'm damned near 80 years old before starting a totally new career."

He is well along with it. The celebrated Paducah, Ky., novelist, is about to sign a new contract with Twentieth Century-Fox studios, calling him to star in two more pictures.

This is on the strength of his most recent film (still unreleased), "Everybody's Old Man," along with "Steamboat 'Round the Bend," in which he appeared with Will Rogers. "I can't act," he said, the tones rumbling from the depths of his great, if sunken, chest. "I haven't even seen my own picture, and I didn't look at any of the scenes as they were taken, for fear I'd get ideas about acting and spoil everything. But I've got an idea about these things."

His theory is that writing and acting both are "efforts to put down something we think, see, or feel." "You know, acting is really my third venture into a creative form," he continued.

"As a boy, I always thought I'd be a painter. Well, there wasn't much chance for instruction in Paducah. The Bohemian set there consisted of an old man Cane, who painted portraits, houses and circus wagons. So I went to work on the Paducah News, as a cartoonist, to earn money to go to Cincinnati, then the center of American culture."

"There wasn't much demand for cartooning, so, finally, they gave me a pencil and told me to pick up some news items to keep busy. That's how I got started writing."

But acting, he explained, is a much more enjoyable profession.

"Writing is a lonely, thankless job. When you're an actor, you're with people. There's a heap of fun connected with the work. I wish I'd started 40 years ago." As for the house where Greta used to live— "I found a souvenir of her," he said. It's a Swedish hot water bottle, as big as a portable bathtub, and with frills on it. "It's been a great inspiration to me in this actin' business."

COMMITTEE TO WORK ON DRIVE BEAUTIFYING

Committees were appointed yesterday to contact property owners along Memorial drive relative to beautification of the roadway, at a meeting of Decatur, Avondale and Stone Mountain citizens, held at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the DeKalb county courthouse. The committees will report the results of their field work at a meeting to be held within the next two weeks, according to Commissioner C. A. Matthews, of DeKalb county, who called the meeting and who presided. It is planned to beautify the drive, a new state highway from Avondale to Stone Mountain, by planting trees, grass and shrubbery under sponsorship of the State Highway Board and the federal government. The project will cost between $50,000 and $80,000, said Mr. Matthews, the funds to be furnished by the federal government.

Atlanta Belles Greet the Spring In Various and Sundry Ways

By Sally Forth.

WHEN Sally awakes to the sound of twittering birds and the scent of early spring flowers; when she walks down the street, only to bump into proud young matrons gleefully trundling baby carriages down the crowded sidewalks; when tennis courts and getting paths are filled to overflowing; and young men think less of getting their daily bread and more of moonlight, the definite realization dawns upon her that spring has verily "sprung." So, desiring to know how young Atlantans are meeting this anticipated change of seasons, she made a round of the old haunts, and this is what she found.

Upon visiting some of the stately buildings on the Emory University campus, she unconsciously shivered at the sight of Mary Cary Maynard and Halle Hulsey, closely resembling mermaids, as they swam quite energetically in that indoor pool. For, far be it from these charming belles to wait for a summer sun to enjoy their favorite warm weather pastime.

Having been confined to their homes for such a long time, due to the inclement weather, Grace Eve and Frances Clark seized their first opportunity to get into the great outdoors, and were seen walking jauntily down Peachtree street, inhaling the pungent air, as though they had never been able to before. Annette Hightower, Helen Hill Hopkins and Emily Smith presented quite an artistic picture as they rested from strenuous bicycling activities beneath overhanging trees by the lake in Peachtree park.

Perceiving Besky Young, Mary Hurt, Emily Timmerman, Jennie Champlin, Julie McClatchey and Dot Coates learning to become expert equestrians, she waved frantically. But, being afraid to drop their reins or let go their horses' necks, very few of these energetic young Atlantans waved back. However, they answered the greeting with a rather doubtful smile.

EVERYTHING was calm recently one evening in Brookwood Hills. Almost everyone on a certain street had gone to bed and "lights out" had rung in practically every household. Suddenly piercing shrieks rent the air.

A woman was crying in a frantic voice, "Don't kill me! Don't kill me!" The voice came from the home of one of the most popular young couples in that section and the cries of the woman were so loud and so heart-rending that many persons in the neighborhood were awakened. One 11-year-old boy next door went in and waked his father, saying, "Daddy, can't we do something?"

Soon things quieted down and the usual calm settled over Brookwood Hills. Many wondered if their neighbor had been murdered, and waked next day a bit earlier than usual to get The Constitution and read the gory details.

All that morning tongues were wagging. "Who could have thought that nice man was such a brute?" seemed to be the consensus. "Oh, well," everyone added, "you can't ever tell about people."

A day or two later the man of that particular household returned from Florida, where he and his family had been enjoying a vacation, having left the wife and children at Tarpon Springs for several weeks longer.

No sooner had he gotten in the house than a tearful maid greeted him with the news that she and her husband had gotten into a terrific fight a few nights earlier. "And, boss, did I holler!" He probably doesn't know until now that the neighbors had branded him almost a Bluebeard.

Anyway, all's well that ends well. The maid and her husband are again on friendly terms and the friends of the young benedict have learned how groundless were their fears that he wasn't all they thought him.

CHATTANOOGA has contributed a charming representative in the person of lovely Stella Thompson, who has arrived to visit Laura Troutman at her home on The Prado. In fact, she came home with Laura, who has just been her guest and the toast of Chattanooga society for a week.

Stella, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Thompson, made her debut during the past winter and was an admired figure at the season's social gayeties. She attended the University of Chattanooga, and later enrolled at the University of Tennessee, where she was a popular member of the Chi Omega sorority.

Small and gentle-voiced and brunette, Stella admirably meets the requirements of masculine preference, with her personal charm and magnetism. She has been feted at a round of informal parties since her arrival, among which was the luncheon at which Epsie Dallas entertained a small group of friends yesterday.

Miss Ruby Walker Weds in Los Angeles.

Of interest to many friends, both in Atlanta and Los Angeles, Cal., is the marriage of Miss Ruby Walker, of Atlanta, and Clarence S. Capps, of Los Angeles, which was solemnized on Saturday, February 29, at the Little Country church of Hollywood. The Rev. Josiah Hopkins officiated.

The bride was lovely in a navy blue crepe, with accessories to match. Her flowers were gardenias.

Mrs. Capps is the only daughter of Mrs. G. T. Walker, of Atlanta. Mr. Capps, son of W. L. Capps, also of Atlanta, is connected with a prominent elevator company. The couple will reside in Long Beach, Cal.

Service Club Meeting.

The Service Club of Mary E. La Rocca Grove No. 284 of the Supreme Forest Woodmen Circle meets Thursday with Mrs. Aha Leen Johnson at 882 Dill avenue. Mrs. Kate Thompson is chairman.

SOCIETY EVENTS

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 11.

Miss Julian Boykin entertains with a luncheon for Miss Dorothy Ewing, a bride-elect, at her home on Myrtle street at 1:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Francis Dwyer will be hostess at luncheon at her home on Brookhaven drive, complimenting the members of the executive board of the Agnes Scott Alumni Association.

Mrs. Virgil Shepard will entertain at a bridge-luncheon at her home on Walker terrace, honoring Mrs. S. P. Gibbons, of New York city.

Regular weekly dance of Club Quadrille at Peachtree Gardens.

Mrs. Marion L. Brittain and Mrs. Paul Webber will be hostesses to members of the executive board of the Georgia Tech Woman's Club at the home of Mrs. Brittain on North avenue.

West End Woman's Club members and their friends will have a get-together luncheon at the clubhouse at 12:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Charles F. Scribner will entertain the Parsonian Club at luncheon at her home, 695 Puliam street.

The College Park Music Club presents "Shakespeare's Seven Ages of Man" at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the College Park Woman's Club.

The Studio Club gives a tea for the casts of its forthcoming plays at the clubrooms.

The 46th annual prom ball sponsored by the United Hebrew school takes place at 9 o'clock at the Shrine mosque.

Moate-Fleming.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther Bass Moate, of Devereux, announce the marriage of their daughter, Carolyn, to Al Fleming, of Waycross, which took place on March 5, in Milledgeville, Ga.

PERSONALS

Mrs. John D. Little returns next Monday from Oakland plantation, at Leesburg, Ga., where she has been spending several weeks. She will be accompanied by Mrs. John Jay Watson, of New York city, who spends her winters at Hickory Grove, her plantation in close proximity to Mrs. Little's plantation. Mrs. Watson frequently visits Mrs. Little and has hosts of friends in Atlanta. Her visit here will provide inspiration for social affairs, given as complimentary gestures to Mrs. Watson.

Mrs. William H. Barnett and baby son, William Bion, of Jacksonville, Fla., arrived yesterday for a visit to the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Boykin, at their home on Andrews drive. Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bennett and son, Boykin, of Chattanooga, will spend the forthcoming week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Boykin.

Miss Stella Thompson, of Chattanooga, is visiting Miss Laura Troutman at her home on The Prado.

Miss Frances Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lane Young, will return on March 24 from Hollins College, where she is a student, for a 10-day visit to her parents.

Mrs. William H. Schroder is visiting her father, Jack J. Spalding, in Miami, Fla. Before returning to Atlanta Mrs. Schroder will visit Mrs. Harry di Christina, at Davenport, Fla. Mrs. di Christina is the former Miss Cobble Vaughan, of Atlanta.

Mrs. James E. Paulin, Mrs. William Minnich and little Cary Minnich will motor to Jacksonville today to spend several days with relatives.

Mrs. Albert Bailey and her daughter, Mrs. Baxter Maddox, returned last week from a several-weeks visit in New York. Miss Beverly Bailey, who is attending Finch school, will return on March 18, to spend spring vacation with her mother.

Mrs. Hughes Spalding and Miss Boline Spalding return today from Washington, D. C. Miss Spalding is enrolled at Georgetown convent, in the national capital, and recently underwent an appendix operation.

Melton-Harber Wedding Takes Place Monday, March 16

Interest centers in the announcement of the wedding plans of Miss Carolyn Reese Melton and Jack J. Harber Jr., the marriage to be solemnized on March 16 at the Westminster Presbyterian church, with the Rev. Peter Marshall officiating in the presence of relatives and a few friends. Music will be furnished by Bob Hess, organist, and Miss Martha Hart, vocalist.

Claude Erwin Melton, father of bride, of West Point, will give his daughter in marriage, and Miss Sarah Melton, the bride's sister, will be her only attendant and maid of honor. Earle Holden will be Mr. Harber's best man, and John and John M. Boston will serve as ushers.

After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. William Paul Green and Mr. and Mrs. James A. McMurray, cousins of the bride-elect, will entertain at a reception at the home of the latter on Morningside drive. Prior to the marriage the bride-elect and her fiancé will be honored at many social affairs.

Among these is the party to be given by Mr. and Mrs. George McMill-

Girls' High School 1926 Graduates Will Hold Reunion on March 25

Members of the 1926 graduating class of Girls' High school will band together for the first time since receiving their diplomas to hold a reunion at the school on March 25. The affair will take the form of a luncheon, at which 250 members of the class will assemble to observe the celebration. The committee in charge of arrangements is composed of Mrs. Robert Taylor, the former Miss Mary Broughton; Mrs. Alan Ford, the former Miss Edith Marshall; Mrs. Martin Kilpatrick, the former Miss Martha Worth Rogers; Mrs. Ralph Uhry, the former Miss Alene Fox; Mrs. W. S. Mitchell, the former Miss De Ette Jones; Mrs. Traxler Stubbs, the former Miss Cornelia Taylor, and Mr. Carl Lippold, the former Miss Virginia Blanchaine.

Due to the many changes of address of class members the committee is having some difficulty in locating all of the class. If any members have information that may prove of value they are requested to get in touch with some member of the committee. This reunion should be of interest to every member of the class of 1926. Further plans will be announced later but class members are urged to make their plans now to attend the reunion luncheon on March 25.

'YOUR FIGURE, MADAME'

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

ULTRA THINNESS INCOMPATIBLE WITH HEALTH.

Underweights have as big a problem in gaining curves as overweighted have in losing bulges. Slimness is fashionable, but thinness is recognized as a health liability and a figure drawback. The slim person's streamlines are curved, but the underweight is lacking in the rounded contours essential to a good figure.

The underweight's biggest problem is to build up the vitality which precedes normal weight. This may take some time, but you should not be discouraged when consistent effort fails to show an immediate gain. If you have adopted a sound program, you are improving your health, and health comes first in the underweight's figure problem.

If you thin ones set out after health, ultimately you need not worry about your weight. Instead of aiming at a certain number of pounds, make physical fitness the goal. Physical fitness does not in every case mean physical perfection, for some are blessed with a better heritage of health than others. But it does mean as healthy a body as each of us can make for herself through healthful living.

With thin people, the more calories you can take, the better. However, this does not mean overeating. When you eat beyond your digestive capacity—and that is just what a lot of thin people do—then the more you eat the thinner you get!

Your problem is to get a lot of calories without overtaxing the system. It can be done, but calories must be tucked into the menu at every opportunity. Also, care should be taken to avoid too many of the bulky foods which lack nutritive value. Above all, avoid foods which are difficult to digest. A food may be fattening, but you cannot gain weight on it if it upsets your digestive processes. Here are a few suggestions for reinforcing the menu with calories: Add cream sauce to cooked vegetables; use olive oil or French dressing on the raw vegetables; add cream to mayonnaise; and take whole milk and cream in every available form. Begin your increased diet with small servings, and gradually add to the quantity.

The weight-gaining menus are all ready for you. However, remember that these menus are only for thin people, with no organic disturbances, who are able to follow a normal diet of high caloric content.

It is always wise for the underweight to begin her weight-gaining program with a visit to the family physician. Ask him if you need to build up your resistance with Vitamin A tablets, or with the new Vitamin B, D and G tablets. Vitamin tablets are an aid to higher vitality.

You may be eating all the food you need but cannot gain weight because of inadequate rest. Rest is always an essential factor in the underweight's program. Whenever possible, rest after meals and get at least eight hours' sleep every night.

Suggested Weight-Gaining Menu.
BREAKFAST: Orange Juice, Cooked Cereal with Whole Milk and Cream.
LUNCHEON: Butter and Honey, Baked Potato, Baked Chicken, Baked Beans, Baked Apples, Baked Potatoes, Baked Peas, Baked Corn, Baked Carrots, Baked Turnips, Baked Onions, Baked Tomatoes, Baked Peppers, Baked Eggplants, Baked Zucchini, Baked Cucumber, Baked Pumpkin, Baked Squash, Baked Melon, Baked Watermelon, Baked Cantaloupe, Baked Honeydew, Baked Strawberry, Baked Raspberry, Baked Blackberry, Baked Blueberry, Baked Elderberry, Baked Gooseberry, Baked Currant, Baked Raspberry, Baked Strawberry, Baked Blackberry, Baked Blueberry, Baked Elderberry, Baked Gooseberry, Baked Currant.

Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Miss Kain, in care of The Constitution, for Ida Jean Kain's "Weight-Gaining Menus." They are of inestimable value to the underweight individual.

Friendly Counsel

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name will be printed if you wish. Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

We are modern young ladies who are highly respected and have always associated with young folks who were also highly respected. We feel that we are in position to present the answer you gave to the girl who asked you about a good-night kiss to her new boyfriend who told her if she had enjoyed the evening she owed it to him. You told her she was clever not to kiss him but we think she was foolish. Good-night kisses may have been a crime in Grandmother's day but such ideas went out with the horse and buggy. Our brothers often discuss the girls they go with. If they happen to run across one that says no, they are apt to call her a lemon and say that if she thinks her kisses are better than others she can keep them. We are not suggesting that a girl should respond to every man's advances, whether honorable or otherwise, but we think that the man who asked your correspondent for a good night kiss was doing what any modern young man would do under the circumstances. A kiss in time will save many a heartache and many an evening spent at home alone.

YOURS FOR GOOD NIGHT KISSES AND MANY OF THEM.

ANSWER:

No doubt you are right that a kiss in time may save a girl many a heartache and many a lonely evening, but I am willing to wager that more girls have lost out by being too free with their kisses than lost out by being chaste. Of course you run across one occasionally that has been fouled up by the wrong sort of girls. But usually there are a few weeks ago the date girls known as "females." Kisses are the stock in trade of "females." I think the toppers among the modern girls have a better stock.

And I say I.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD: Has a mother any right to read her daughter's personal mail, letters from boys or girls? Of course if a girl hasn't finished her education this should come first, but do you think she should be required to spend all her time at school? I am an 18-year-old girl supposed to sit at home, be mother's baby while she is dying to be out with the crowd having a good time. I know that a girl shouldn't forget that she has a home and a family but I don't think she should be required to spend all her time at home and have no pleasure outside.

X. Y. Z.

ANSWER: Of course no mother has a right to read her daughter's mail. This is an invasion of another individual's privacy that is inexcusable. Not even motherhood gives a woman the right to open her child's sealed letter and if she persists in doing it she will discover that the letters soon cease to come to the home address.

An 18-year-old girl is certainly not supposed to depend on her family for entertainment, or the family on her. If she can't be trusted to have dates at 18 she can never be trusted. A sensible woman should see the wisdom of trying to keep a grown daughter tied to her apron strings. When the strings become irksome then is the time to loosen them and if they aren't loosened mama will eventually have her apron torn off.

Many a crime is committed in the name of love that doesn't reach the courts for trial. The most common ones are those committed by women who because of stupidity, or ignorance, or jealousy, or desire to dominate, won't take their throbbing hands off their children's throats.

JAMES B. BASS, 76, DIES AT RESIDENCE

Virginia Was Employee of City for More Than 30 Years.

James B. Bass, former city employee and widely known Atlanta, died yesterday morning at his residence, 619 Woodland avenue, S. E., at the age of 76.

Mr. Bass, until his retirement two years ago, was an employee of the Atlanta water department for more than 30 years, a greater portion of the time as foreman of the waterworks in the construction department.

He was a native of Richmond, Va., but came here as a young man shortly after his marriage to his wife, the former Miss Ida Blanche Davis, who survives him.

Other survivors are two daughters, Mrs. Joseph J. Fields, of Tampa, Fla., and Mrs. Edna Bass, of Atlanta.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Moreland Avenue Baptist church with the Rev. T. T. Davis officiating.

Burial will be in the cemetery under the direction of J. Austin Dillon.

Things That Make Women More Beautiful

(Posed by Elaine Johnson)

A Cologne That Makes You Feel Like a Magnate "Sitting Pretty"

By MIGNON.

Every woman, from the poorest to the richest, can improve her morale by buying something that she does not absolutely have to have. Sometimes it is a new hat, which I am told does more to turn a grumpy old woman into a happy woman than anything on earth. Very often it is a bottle of perfume or cologne that costs quite a little but more than she had planned to spend, considering the size of her allowance.

My extravagance is cologne, and if there is anything that makes you feel better after a warm bath than giving yourself a good cologne rub, it is cologne. I found one a few weeks ago that has a gorgeous scent. It is not so strong that after you are dressed it will interfere with any perfume you want to use, and yet you feel as if you owned a couple of utility companies after you have used it generously. Perfumes elate most people, and, considering the shortness of life, I believe in women buying them generously.

This is an eau de cologne that you should trot right downtown and buy, because you are going to get a decided thrill out of it. It has a bottle with a flat bottom, and it runs to a point at the top in which there is a silver colored stopper in modernistic design. The cologne is amber-colored, and, oh—what a fragrance!

Culbertson on Contract

By ELY CULBERTSON, World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

Opening Lead Formula.

I am continually asked for a formula for correct opening leading. One might as well seek a specific for a dozen different kinds of diseases.

Nothing can be more a matter of individual hand analysis than the opening lead. As I have pointed out on innumerable occasions, the bidding (or, negatively, the lack of bidding) often carries the vital clue. At other times the leader has only his own cards to guide him. In these cases the best plan is to set up an arbitrary objective. Thus, if he holds tricks in the heart and diamond suits and the contract is four spades, it is obvious that he should attempt to establish a club trick on the opening lead. Trump tricks, if any, will require no establishment. In a sense, this method of preserving what one already has, and attempting to create what one has not, may be called a "formula for leading."

A Case in Point.

West, the opening leader in today's hand, followed the above policy to good effect.

Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

East South West North
1 spades Pass 3 spades Pass
4 spades (final bid).

South, on lead, wasted no mental effort in trying to visualize what was impossible. He had no idea as to the distribution of the other three hands, but he did know that he had at least two tricks in the minor suits. A trump lead had no particular object and it would lose time. The process of elimination led him unerringly to a heart lead.

He opened the six, intending later to lead the eight, so as not to mislead partner into believing it a dublet opening. Dummy played low and North's jack forced one king. Two rounds of trumps followed, and then the diamond ten was led. South ducked, as did dummy, and North's queen won. A club put South on lead and he returned the eight of hearts. It did not matter now what dummy played. The contract was hopeless.

North's queen of hearts had to win, either then or later, when South won his diamond ace.

Admitting that the declarer made an unfortunate guess on his first diamond lead, South still deserved full credit for selecting the only lead that had even a chance to defeat the contract.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: One is opening the bidding with one no trump. What should be my response with the following: Spades x x, hearts x x, diamonds Q 10 x x x, clubs, Q x x?

DENTAL CLINICIANS TO NAME OFFICERS

Two Noted Periodontologists Will Address Academy In Session Here.

Dr. J. A. Sinclair, of Asheville, and Dr. Virgil Loebe, of St. Louis, will address the Southern Academy of Periodontology at a session at the Biltmore hotel this morning. Officers will be elected following the addresses.

A banquet honoring visiting dental specialists and clinicians was held last night. Dr. R. Holmes Mason, of Macon, presided. Dr. Maurice Weeks, of New Orleans, president of the American Academy of Periodontology, scheduled to speak, was unable to attend.

First session of the academy opened yesterday afternoon at the adjournment of the Thomas P. Hinman midwinter dental clinic, held for the discussion of new developments in the general practice of dentistry. Problems confronting dentists particularly interested in the care of the gums are being considered at sessions of the academy.

PETRIE TO SPEAK

Ad Club Will Hear of European Advertising.

Robert Edwin Petrie, of New York, director of the Institute of Foreign Travel, will address the Atlanta Advertising Club at its luncheon meeting at the Atlanta Athletic Club at 12:30 o'clock today. He will speak on "European Advertising."

Mr. Petrie has been speaking before advertising clubs in this country and abroad for 25 years. At present he is making a tour of the principal cities of the United States, lecturing on European conditions.

New members of the club, enrolled during the last month, will be introduced at the luncheon. The meeting also will be open to former members of the club and to others interested in advertising, it was said.

SCHOOL TERMS SHORT IN SEVERAL COUNTIES

State's Financial Imbroglio Driving Children Out of Classes as Funds Fail.

From several Georgia counties came complaints yesterday that school terms will be cut short this year through the middle that is tying up the state's finances.

Bulloch county's only hope, according to Superintendent T. P. Womack, is for some sudden action from delinquent taxpayers or a release of state funds frozen in Atlanta banks, while the financial puzzle devised by Governor Talmadge is thrashed out in the courts. More than $6,000 in worthless checks are held in Statesboro, Superintendent Womack said.

In Taliaferro county teachers are without means of support. Warrants on state funds, issued to the teachers for their work during February, have been returned unpaid, according to Dr. E. T. Fortwood, of Crawfordville, the county superintendent. Banks, he said, are refusing to advance emergency funds under existing conditions to tide over the school system.

In McDuffie county the school system, with a $4,500 monthly overhead, has only $450 on hand, according to A. D. Kean, superintendent. If he fails to cash warrants, Mr. Kean said, efforts will be made to obtain emergency loans at the banks. Doubt was expressed that the banks will consent to these loans.

Hancock county is using surplus funds from last year and cash collected in 1935, according to Clarence F. Reynolds, chairman of the board. The full term is assured for this year, Mr. Reynolds said, because this cash was available, but unless relief comes from the state the county schools will be unable to reopen in September.

In Richmond county, S. D. Copeland, superintendent of the school system, reported that sufficient funds are on hand to continue the schools in operation until this summer.

SCHOOLS IN CARROLL WILL BE CLOSED SOON

CARROLLTON, Ga., March 10.—(AP)—A decision to close Carroll county schools earlier than usual because of a lack of money to operate a full term was announced here today following a session of the county board of education.

The announcement said negro schools will close next Friday, March 13, and that rural white schools will begin closing March 27, perhaps earlier. Long-term schools will continue until about April 10 unless money is forthcoming to keep them open longer.

V. D. Whitley, school superintendent, said that regardless of how the state's financial situation turns out, the early closings would be necessary because of a lack of funds.

Attending today's board session were E. G. Kirby, Bowdon; C. M. Stallings, Carrollton; M. E. V. Spence, Temple; W. M. Talley, Villa Rica; and E. W. Hearn, Hickory Level.

SIX DAYS REMAIN TO TAX DEADLINE

Arrival of March 15 on Sunday Gives Added Day of Grace.

Just six more days before the income tax returns must be filed—state and federal.

March 15 arrives next Sunday and this helpful act of the calendar gives Georgians another day of delay without a penalty.

Both W. Eugene Page, United States internal revenue commissioner, and Paul H. Doyal, chairman of the state revenue commission, have announced that the deadline this year is Monday, March 16.

Both bureaus announce that taxpayers are lagging this year and that the last hour rushes promise to be unprecedented.

And, in both the state and the federal bureaus, penalties are fixed by law for those who ignore these expiration dates.

FUNERAL RITES HELD FOR L. M. CLAYTON

Funeral services for L. M. Clayton, of 477 Puley street, East Atlanta, long time resident, who died Monday, were held at 11 o'clock yesterday morning at the Carmel Baptist church, Woodstock, with the Rev. A. J. Stover officiating.

Burial was in the churchyard under the direction of Harold H. Sims.

Fite-Dean Rites Are Announced.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 10.—Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Warner, of Nashville, announce the marriage of their daughter, Emily Warner Fite, and Joel Edward Dean, of Old Hickory, Tenn., formerly of Rome. The marriage took place at Brookhill, home of the bride's parents, at high noon last Saturday, Dr. Thomas C. Barr, assistant pastor of the First Presbyterian church, officiated in the presence of a limited number of friends and relatives.

William Dean, of Rome, student at Georgia Tech, served as his brother's best man. The bride was given in marriage by her father, Edwin Warner. A wedding breakfast followed the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Dean are spending their honeymoon in New York and will visit Mr. Dean's brother, J. Simpson Dean, and Mrs. Dean's sister, Mrs. E. J. Dean, before returning to Nashville about April 1.

Mr. Dean is the second son of Mrs. Joel Edward Dean and the late Mr. Dean. His mother is the former Miss Lillian Hannum, of Nashville, Tenn.

Since receiving a degree in textile engineering at Georgia Tech, Mr. Dean has been associated with the Pontchartraine factory of Old Hickory. He is a member of Nashville's leading social clubs and the Tech S. A. E. chapter.

His mother and sisters, Miss Mary Jane Dean, Mrs. David Curry Porter, Mrs. Robert M. Harbin Jr., and Dr. Harbin, of Rome, attended the marriage.

The bride attended Holton-Arms school, Washington, and visits Mrs. William Healy in Atlanta. Upon their return to Nashville they will reside at Brookhill on Harding road.

Bird and Flower Club.

The Bird and Flower Garden Club meets at the Hotel Henry Grady on Thursday at 10:30 o'clock. A full attendance is urged as delegates will be elected to the annual meeting of the Garden Club of Georgia, to be held in Albany on April 2 and 3.

Thurston Hatcher Weds Mrs. Edwards At Quiet Service

Announcement is made of the marriage of Mrs. Mildred Green Edwards to Thurston Hatcher, the ceremony taking place on Saturday evening, March 7, at 8:30 o'clock, at the parsonage of St. Philip's cathedral. Dean Raimundo de Ortes performed the service which was attended by only a few members of the immediate families.

Mrs. Hatcher is a member of one of Georgia's oldest and most prominent families. Her parents, Mr. T. Green and the late Mr. Green, were among the pioneers of Eatonton, where the former still resides. Mr. A. Tucker, of this city, is Mrs. Hatcher's sister, and her only brother is Gilmore Green, of Miami.

Mrs. Hatcher is also a native of middle Georgia, Macon, being her original home. He is the son of Mrs. R. A. Hatcher, of Decatur, and the late Mr. Hatcher. Mrs. E. L. McGee, of Macon, is his only sister. Mr. and Mrs. Hatcher are making their home at 1829 Boulevard, N. E.

Mrs. Gibbons Feted During Visit Here

Mrs. S. P. Gibbons, of New York, is receiving much social attention as the guest of Mrs. Charles Hervey Kersey at her home on Ponce de Leon avenue. Mrs. Kersey is the hostess in the city of Mrs. Gibbons, who is visiting here on her way to her home in New York. Mrs. Kersey is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Ingles and her daughter, Mrs. Charles King, will be hostesses at tea at the Ponce de Leon Club in honor of Mrs. Gibbons.

Mrs. Kersey complimented her guest with a buffet luncheon yesterday at her home. A cloth of Pointe de Venise lace, over yellow satin, covered the luncheon table, which was centered with an antique silver epergne filled with spring blossoms in pastel tints.

Invited to meet Mrs. Gibbons were Mesdames Scott Allen, Otis White, John Bothamley, Claude Barnwell, A. T. Bassett, R. A. Bartholomew, Wilbur Blackman, R. C. Darby, James DeJarnette, E. H. Dulany, Frank Eagle, Limyra Jarman, W. L. Ingles, Charles King, Evan McConnell, James Oliver, E. G. Ruffner, Virgil Shepard, Charles Trenchard, Mary Evans Gillfillan and Miss Norma Hanna.

Mrs. Kersey and Mrs. Gibbons will leave Saturday for Miami, Fla., where they will spend the next week.

The Norman V. Randolph Relief Fund for Needy Confederate Women, committee of the Atlanta Chapter of United Daughters of the Confederacy, will hold a rummage sale on Saturday from 8 to 2 o'clock. Mrs. Nellie V. Dumas is chairman of the fund, reported at the Hot Springs convention last November that there were 30 pensioners on the roll. She is particularly anxious that all money be forwarded promptly so there will be sufficient to meet the monthly pensions during the year. Members and friends of the chapter are urged to contribute to this fund. The sale will be held at the Municipal Curb Market. Members wishing to contribute money must send checks to Mrs. N. B. Dumas, 1447 West for kindergarten, Kibier, president of the chapter, urges all members to contribute to this fund.

Sims-Lee.

WOODBURY, Ga., March 10.—The marriage of Miss Mary Sims, of Woodbury, to William R. Lee, of Savannah, was solemnized at high noon on March 7, at the home of the bride, was performed by Rev. J. F. Norton, of Griffin, in the presence of the immediate family and a few close friends.

While the tapers were being lighted by the twin nieces of the bride, Misses Mildred and Margaret Sims, "Love You Truly" was played by Mrs. Alvin Sims, who rendered the wedding music. The bride's book was kept by Miss Carolyn Sims, another niece of the bride.

The bride wore a navy blue ensemble with accessories to match and shoulder bouquets of sweet white roses and valley lilies. After a wedding trip the couple will reside in Savannah.

The Lithonia Woman's Club, of which Mrs. Nelson Severinghaus is president, will be hostess to members of the executive board of the Fifth District of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs Thursday at 9:30 o'clock. A scrupulous luncheon will be served at 1 o'clock at the cost of 50 cents apiece. Reservations may be made to Mrs. Nelson Severinghaus, Lithonia, or Mrs. Paul J. McGovern, in Avondale Estates.

E. J. Newmeyer, mayor of Lithonia, will extend welcome. Mrs. C. J. Tucker will be in charge of the luncheon and Mrs. Charles Davidson of general arrangements. Mrs. Tucker and Mrs. Davidson have served the Lithonia club as president as well as in other capacities and are being assisted by the club membership.

Mrs. P. J. McGovern, district president, announces there will be an award to the club showing the largest percentage attendance other than the hostess club. The session will be lightened by community singing and the Lithonia Woman's Club invites inspection of the community library they have sponsored and which has grown to be a major civic asset to the city of Lithonia. Several important subjects have been referred to the districts by the state executive board meeting and will be discussed at this fifth district meeting; also a member to the state nominating committee is to be elected at this time to function at the August state convention April 21-24.

Reports will be heard from the district officers; Mrs. Lawrence Camp, chairman of Tallahassee school committee; Mrs. John Spaulding, chairman student aid committee; Mrs. E. J. Imbargh, chairman Ella E. White fund; and three-minute reports from each federated club president. Clubwomen are invited to the meeting, as the district will have a club institute this year due to the early date of the board meeting and the state convention.

Miss Oglesby is a graduate of the American Academy of Dramatic Arts in New York, for which she was recommended by the producer, D. W. Griffith. She is on a brief visit here to her father, Dr. Oglesby.

My Day

By ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich.—We had a very peaceful trip to Detroit. My secretary and I went into the diner and everyone was most polite and paid no attention to us. I was so sleepy after dinner that after reading for a while, I had our compartment made up and forced poor Mrs. Scheider to go to bed at the early hour of 9:30.

Just as we pulled into Detroit a young man came aboard and said the vice president of the Pere Marquette railroad, Mr. R. J. Bowman, was going to Grand Rapids and offered his private car for our use. I hesitated, fearing that they were making a special trip for me, but he assured me he was attaching the car to the regular train and that it was going up empty as he was going with some officials in their car.

Hence we came into Grand Rapids in great state with a whole private car to ourselves. After breakfast—orange juice, toast and coffee—we were settled down to some work which we finished just as we pulled into Grand Rapids at 11 o'clock.

The Rev. and Mrs. Milton McGorrell and a committee from the Fountain Baptist church, for which I am to speak, met me and we proceeded at once to the Hotel Pontilind. I saw two ladies of the press and a representative of the Toledo Press. After that, we accompanied Mayor Timmers and joined the committee at a very delightful luncheon.

At 2:45 I set out to visit some WPA projects. First, the project where immunization against whooping cough is being studied, a very interesting piece of work. Mrs. Thomas McAllister, Dr. and Mrs. Paul De Kruff and Miss Murray, state chairman of the women's division of the WPA, were with me.

Then we went to another project, a municipal garage, which will be a tremendous building. The men working on it looked happy and 500 are employed in four shifts. I was assured that this project is being supervised by the city engineers and the work was considered as good as any contract work. Even though they had to train many of the men, it is a very efficient job.

From there we came back to the hotel to receive a group of women who belong to the League of Women Voters, and a group of democratic women. In a few minutes I am going to see the church where I am to speak tonight. This has been a fairly active day, but an interesting one. (Copyright, 1936, for The Constitution.)

What Initials Does a Bride-to-be Use in Her Monogram?

By FLORENCE La GANKE.

The lines in Doris' hope chest were piling up in a most satisfactory fashion. She really was putting money into the household linen than she was in her clothes. "You see, it's this way," she would explain, "there aren't many changes in styles in towels and sheets and dust cloths. But styles in clothes certainly do change. Why should I load myself up with clothes that will be good and wearable but out of date. I'd rather have linen acquired after marriage is marked, of course, with the married name initials. Styles in monograms change. Sometimes "lower case," or small letters are used instead. Sometimes the initials are florid, sometimes the tendency toward straight and severe ones. Really, though the style is set by the pattern and weight of linen which is to be monogrammed. Table cloth monograms are four, five or six inches high. Napkins use one and one-half to two and one-half inches monograms depending on the size of the napkin. Guest towels call for a three-inch monogram. Sheet monograms vary from four to six and one-half inches in height, pillow cases used a monogram two and one-half to three inches in height. Of course, this height may be that of a single letter or it may be the total height of the arrangement of the three letters.

"The Store All Women Know"

Crackers Display Hitting Power in Long Workout at Camp

Reaching the middle thirties, a bit fat and soft, and then being tossed into a two-fisted football game against a tough sawmill hand—

That was just one of the experiences of the dark ages of college athletics. They are collecting the ancient athletic history at Georgia Tech and some of the chapters are good.

When football was first begun in Georgia and Alabama, it usually was initiated by some young faculty member who had come from an eastern college. This was true at Auburn, at Georgia Tech and at other institutions.

And the faculty men played with the teams, just to have a little fun. And the practice of bringing in "ringers" was a universal one.

George Griffin, who is engaged in collecting the material, received a letter from A. D. Black, successful engineer in the east and a graduate of the Tech class of 1893.

There were no athletics at all in 1888. In 1889 there was a baseball team organized. He recalls it as follows:

"In the very beginning; that is, during the fall of 1888, nothing was attempted in the athletic line. However, during the spring of 1889 we were able, through the financial assistance and moral encouragement of Professor J. S. Coon, to acquire a limited amount of baseball equipment. There was no baseball field, except an improvised one being more or less of rough surface proximating a plane sloping at least 10 degrees in two directions. After practicing assiduously on this so-called diamond, I always felt that it was unfortunate that we could not meet our contestants on this particular field on which we had learned to allow for the likely behavior of a ball due to the irregularities of the ground. During that year we journeyed out to an army post located in the suburbs of Atlanta on two occasions, playing each time a team composed of soldiers. We won one and lost the other of the games. While pitching the lost game, I received a bit of advice that has helped me throughout life. In the late stage of this game the soldiers had winning runs on the bags, which caused me to complain to a big army sergeant standing directly behind the pitcher's box in the capacity of umpire, that my arm was hurting, whereupon he immediately replied: 'Son, you are mistaken; it is not your arm that is hurting, but your heart.'

"During this and the following season our baseball club also played four games with the well-organized Southern railroad team. For these games we had the use of a first-class diamond across town in one of the city parks. These games were played on Saturday afternoons and were well attended, but unfortunately the park was not inclosed by a fence or any other barricade and no effort was made to replenish sorely-needed funds to buy equipment. Saturday afternoon was the only day in the week in which students were released before 4 o'clock; in fact, during three days of the week we worked in the shop until 6 o'clock p. m., causing them to reach home in the late fall and early spring in complete darkness."

"Son, you are mistaken; it is not your arm that is hurting, but your heart," is one of the best lines in years. I can hear, and see, that hard-boiled old sergeant saying it. Times such as those are the ones most likely to cause one to ache. A fighter once told me—"The loneliest place in the world is the prize ring when you are losing the fight."

And it might be interesting to the young mental giants now in the classrooms to note those school hours—"until 4 o'clock on three days and until 6 o'clock the other three."

THE BEST FOOTBALL STORY.

The best football story in years also comes from Engineer Black, who played with the first Tech team to take a trip out of Atlanta—some time between '89 and '92."

It was to Macon to play Mercer, and that story goes as follows:

"Some time between '89 and '92 I also was a member of, and took a trip with, the first Georgia Tech football team that played a game outside of Atlanta. We went to Macon and dropped a game to Mercer University. I had some inside information on the personnel of the Mercer team to the effect that two of their men made no pretense of attending the institution, but had been brought in due to their great strength and toughness."

HANK GREENBERG DENIES INCREASE

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP)—Hank Greenberg, slugging first baseman of the World Champion Detroit Tigers, tonight charged the club management with trying to "put me on the spot" after he had received another salary offer which he said was identical with the original one which he refused.

Greenberg, a product of the side-walks of New York, said the latest overture, in a letter which he received today, was an attempt on the part of the Detroit management to make it appear that he was being unreasonable in the negotiations. He said he was not at liberty to name the figure offered by the club.

"This latest letter was sent for the purpose of making an impression with the press," Greenberg said. "If the figure was satisfactory I would have accepted it in the beginning and would now be at the training camp. I want to play and I am ready to play, but I insist that I get what I am asking for and I will stick to my guns. I guess being a holdout is one of the things you have to go through to be a good ball player."

Charles Askins Jr. and Louis Knesek, representing the western division of the federal immigration border patrol at El Paso, won the two men event with pistols of .32-caliber over Los Angeles' team was second.

E. E. Jones, member of the Los Angeles team, took first in the individual pistol event. Askins, of El Paso, was second.

Two more matches were to be shot this afternoon.

PEBS CUT LOOSE IN BAT SESSION AT LITTLE ROCK

Work on Infield Delays Fielding Practices for Rookies.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 10.—(AP)—Favored by ideal weather conditions, Doc Prothro's Little Rock Travelers cut loose in first batting drills while rookie infielders in camp awaited completion of work on the infield to begin their practice.

"Give us two weeks of weather like this and we'll be in condition," said the Doc. The Little Rock pilot announced he probably would cut his squad later this week to make room for veteran outfielders and infielders scheduled to report Sunday.

Taitt Arrives At Vol Camp.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., March 10.—(AP)—Nashville's assorted crop of rookies and semi-pros today went through another stiff conditioning session under the direction of Manager Lance Richbourg while the veterans drifted in for their initial workout.

Poco Taitt, batting champion, arrived last night and took his first crack at the rookie mound offerings today. Bill Rodda, star shortstop and key to the infield, was expected tomorrow.

Richbourg said he had heard from Grady Basset, rookie prize, and expects to have him signed in a few days, adding that no word had been received from Flint Rhem, former big leaguer, who has expressed dissatisfaction with the Vol terms.

Lookouts Take First Workout.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., March 10.—(AP)—Great gulps of sunshine sent the Chattanooga Lookouts romping through their first workout at their new quarters here this afternoon despite a morning drizzle that prevented an earlier drill.

Fred Chapman, promising infielder, believed at first to be a "class" man turned out to be a rookie today, according to Vice President Calvin Griffith. He will have been competition from Jim Bloodworth and Stanley Brown for the shortstop and third base spots.

Everybody save Alex McColl and Harry Taylor was on hand today and the latter is expected in when Joe Engel, president, arrives, to discuss terms.

The ball park here is on an island in the Halifax river and has no fences, but the experts say only a foul or a "dream drive" could get into the water.

Chick Regulars Are Dissatisfied

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 10.—(AP)—Thirty Memphis Chickasaws worked out today, but several prospective regulars were missing from the field.

These included Andy Reese, outfielder-first baseman, and Pitcher Clay Touchstone, who has not come to terms with the management, watched the workout from the stands. Reese, who has been here for several days, returned to his home at their request with the remark that "it's not for me to say when I'll be back."

Kraft-Phenix Faces Warren Five Tonight

Tied for the last-half basketball championship of the Atlanta Commercial league, the Kraft-Phenix Cheese and Warren Companies teams will put a fighting touch to the finals of the schedule when they meet in the first game of the three games scheduled at the Y. M. C. A. tonight.

A win by either team means the last-half crown, and a capacity crowd is expected for one of the classic games of the season.

Warren battled to a tie position with Cudahy Packing in the first half. Warren has some of the best basketball material in the city in Ed Bellamy, Arthur McHenry, Fred Bradford and Murray Wilcher.

For these stars Kraft can match them with Gene Warlick, Toughy Griffith, Sap Day, Pee Wee Johnson and Harbin.

The feature game starts at 7:30 o'clock and will be followed by a fast game between Cudahy Packers and Dixieland.

THE SCHEDULE.
Kraft-Phenix Cheese vs. Warren Company at 7 o'clock.
Dixieland vs. Cudahy Packing Company at 8 o'clock.

Uzudun Trial Set For Madrid Friday

MADRID, March 10.—(UP)—Paulino Uzudun, veteran Spanish heavyweight boxer, will be tried Friday with seven others charged with implication in the Straperlo gambling concession scandal which was responsible for the fall of the Chapaprieta government recently.

Uzudun, who recently returned to Spain from the United States where he was defeated by Joe Louis, is believed to have contributed about $5,000 to the concession, which operated in violation of the Spanish gambling laws.

Tallahassee Fives Advance in Meet

MOULTREE, Ga., March 10.—(AP)—Two Tallahassee quintets, Pavo and Adel, had advanced to the second round of the Georgia gold medal basketball tournament here today.

The Albany "Y" Blues and Moultrie Steers already were in the pairings. Middle Florida Ice Company eliminated Bayville, 32 to 18; Pavo defeated the Moultrie "Y," 42 to 22; Adel whipped Warrior, 53 to 43; and Calloway's of Tallahassee, outlasted Morgan, 40 to 36, last night in opening trials.

Murray Teachers Win S. I. A. A. Title

JACKSON, Miss., March 10.—(AP)—The Murray (Kentucky) Teacher College of Murray, Ky., tonight won the S. I. A. A. basketball championship by defeating its state rivals, the Western Kentucky Teachers, of Bowling Green, Ky., 28 to 26.

Commission Delays Gastanaga Inquiry

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP)—The New York State Athletic Commission today postponed until March 27 the hearing into the managerial affairs of Izzy Gastanaga, the Spanish heavyweight who was stopped by Primo Carnera in five rounds last week.

Solly King, who claims to hold the Spaniard's contract and has charged that Gastanaga as well as Carnera is under the management of Louis Sobri, was represented by Attorney Abe Siegel. D. J. Rizzi has been represented as Gastanaga's manager of record.

King wired the commissioners from Miami that Siegel would be in possession of evidence of collusion, but the attorney failed to produce it when he was called upon.

Meanwhile, pending the outcome of the hearing, both fighters' purses have been ordered held up by the commission. King has filed an attachment against Gastanaga's share.

Here's Unusual Point---You Can Bet His Nose Knows

Timerson, setter dog owned by Fred Jordan, of Atlanta, is shown here on an unusual point. The dog had stopped in this stream to drink but smelled the birds and pointed them before drinking. The birds got up from the bank of the stream just where the dog's nose is pointing. The picture was taken by Charles D. Jordan, of Monticello.

MANGIN RETAINS NATIONAL CROWN

Gregory Beats Hartman for Fourth Net Title in Five Years.

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP)—Gregory Mangin stood off his final challenger tonight and retained the United States indoor singles tennis championship with a 6-1, 6-3, 4-6, 6-3, win from Leonard Hartman, former Columbia University basketball star. It was Mangin's fourth triumph in the championship in five years.

Mangin, who won the title in 1932, 1933 and last year, was squarely in command of the first two sets and then tired from the swift pace of his fiery volleys and booming drives. Hartman, an unorthodox player in style and unpredictable in so far as his capabilities are concerned, quickly seized the opening and for a time threatened seriously.

Hartman, the conqueror of the highly favored Frank Bowden and Gilbert Hall in the preliminary rounds, took the play away from the titleholder and appeared to have a better than even chance of coping the fourth set when Mangin suddenly ended the stampede when he won the set by breaking through Hartman's delivery after the former Columbia University basketball star had gotten away to a 30-16 lead.

GEORGIA FINALE FORECAST TODAY

ATHENS, Ga., March 10.—The Georgia football spring practice session will likely adjourn Wednesday.

Coach Mehre indicated this with two conditions today: first, if two well teams report in for a large crowd turns out. The final game of the season with "Georgia Tech" will be held regardless of the weather conditions.

In a blocking scrimmage and signal drill today, the squads noticeably displeased the Georgia mentor. Blocking in general was poor but Coach Mehre was well satisfied with the work of Cranshaw Bonner.

The guard situation still continues to puzzle coaches. Roy Gatchell and Harry Harman, tackles, intended for trout at that position, have not received much instructions because of ailments and interferences.

Commission Delays Gastanaga Inquiry

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP)—The New York State Athletic Commission today postponed until March 27 the hearing into the managerial affairs of Izzy Gastanaga, the Spanish heavyweight who was stopped by Primo Carnera in five rounds last week.

Timerson Sets Record, Points in Mid-Stream

Fred Jordan's Setter Is "Caught" by Camera While on Unusual Point.

By Ralph McGill.

Charley Jordan, one of the many fine sportsmen in Monticello, Ga., carries a camera with him on bird hunts—a habit which is growing in hunting circles.

Which explains why one of the most unusual points in bird dog history was recorded for history—a bird dog pointing from the middle of a stream.

Timerson, a setter owned by Fred Jordan, of Atlanta, son of the aforementioned gentleman from Monticello, is kept, along with other dogs, at the Jordan kennel in Monticello.

On the last day of the late hunting season the Jordan family and friends went hunting.

HUNTED WELL.

Timerson had hunted well all morning. It was near noon when they came to a stream. Timerson, hot and thirsty, ran into the stream to have a drink. He had just dropped his head to lap up some water when they saw him jerk it up to the point.

Charles Jordan, who carries a camera, hurriedly got his focus and snapped the picture of the dog just as it was "drawing" forward and ready to freeze.

A nice cover, which had come down to get a drink, got up from the bank of the stream just ahead of the dog's nose.

ALL-AGE DOG.

Timerson is being groomed for the field trials next year. He will run as an all-age dog. Charley Jordan, who is another setter-dog man, has been suffering for years because of the pointer victories in most field trials. Timerson he regards as the best setter to come under his observation in the past 10 years. He is by Roy Kelly and is out of Gloria.

The colored kennel man started calling the setter Old Timer when the dog was but a pup. It proved impossible to register him either as Old Timer or Timer, those names having been used for other dogs. Timerson was the nearest they could get.

So far as local hunting history goes, this is the first record of a point made from the middle of a stream of water.

Buxby Is Extended In Surf Club Event

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 10.—(AP)—Favorites, with one exception, won their opening matches in the annual Surf Club invitation tennis tournament here today in accepted first-round fashion.

Only Martin Buxby, Miami, seeded No. 3, ran into unexpected opposition. He was extended three sets to eliminate Richard Clements, Larchmont, N. Y., 6-0, 3-6, 6-4.

Charles Harris, West Palm Beach, the No. 1, defeated Steve Lynch, Miami Beach, 6-1, 6-1; Arthur Hendrix, Lakeland, the No. 2, won from Roswell Lee, Miami, by default; and Weston Painter, Minneapolis, the No. 5, trounced Robert Durcan, Miami Beach, 6-0, 6-0.

Oklahoma City President Dies

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 10.—(AP)—John D. "Jack" Holland, 63, owner of the Oklahoma City club of the Texas baseball league, died here early tonight.

Holland had been in ill health for four years. For 40 years Holland has been a figure in minor league baseball as player, manager, club owner and a developer of major league talent.

He was elected last night, succeeding Harry Anderson, Memphis, Tenn., boy, who will receive his degree in June.

COACHING DEBUT.

MACON, Ga., March 10.—(AP)—"Cotton" Harrison, former Mercer griddon star, made his debut as assistant to Coach Lake Russell yesterday as the Bears were called out for the first session of spring football training. With few veterans returning, Russell is faced with the task of developing much new material for the 1936 Mercer team.

Philadelphia Gets Schmeling-Louis Go

PHILADELPHIA, March 10.—(AP)—Mayor S. Davis Wilson announced today that Philadelphia is assured of getting the Joe Louis-Max Schmeling heavyweight fight in June.

Mike Jacobs, New York promoter, who has the fight under contract, is reported traveling to hold it during the democratic national convention that month.

The mayor would not disclose who gave him the assurance and said the date is undecided.

Count Henri Sees Games for Berlin

HONOLULU, March 10.—(AP)—There is no possibility of transferring the Olympic games from Berlin this summer because of the European situation, Count Henri Baillet-Latour, of Belgium, president of the international Olympics, said today.

"The only thing that can stop the games is war," he said, "and if there is war, there will be no games at all."

The count is en route to Japan to survey the possibility of holding the 1940 Olympics there.

Marshall Named Vol Court Leader

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., March 10.—(AP)—Floyd (Biggy) Marshall, star forward and leading scorer of the championship University of Tennessee basketball team, will captain the quintet next season.

He was elected last night, succeeding Harry Anderson, Memphis, Tenn., boy, who will receive his degree in June.

Challenge Match Is Scheduled Here

A challenge match of 72 holes to be played over the Capital City Club course was arranged Tuesday afternoon.

Billy Ginn, a member of Tech's golf team, and Charlie Shropshire will play Willie Livingston, assistant club professional, and Tommy Shropshire.

Billy and Charlie issued the challenge to the up in the middleweight division of the 1935 tourney, it is understood. He has a terrific right and does not box scientifically, according to reports.

No other Georgia boxer will enter the Virginia meet.

NEW YORK, March 10.—(UP)—Sonja Heinie, Norway's wonder girl skater, arrived on the Ile de France today to take some screen tests. She said "We're just here to see the place to rumors she was to marry Jack Dickson, American sports promoter, of Paris."

The three-time Olympic champion figure skater announced she is seeking a rest cure.

"After all," demurred the Pavlova of the ice, "skating has been my life. But from now on I only want to do exhibition skating."

Davis Cup Play Slated on Grass as U. S. Yields to Australia

BITSY'S POSITION MADE DIFFICULT BY PLACE CHANGE

Matches Had Been Scheduled on Clay; Team Selections Confirmed.

By Bob Cavagnaro.

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP)—The United States Lawn Tennis Association, yielding to Australia's wish, announced today that the anticipated North American zone Davis cup final between the Aussies and Uncle Sam's representatives will be played on the grass courts of the Germantown Cricket Club, near Philadelphia.

The matches have been scheduled tentatively for Memorial Day weekend in May, assuming that Australia eliminates Cuba and the United States disposes of Mexico in first-round matches.

Because few grass courts are in condition for play in the spring and consequently the American players will have had little opportunity to practice on them, it had been hoped by American officials to play the matches on clay. The grass season in Australia, however, has just closed and the Aussies weren't keen to play on a hard surface.

Meanwhile the Davis cup committee, of which Holcombe Ward is chairman, confirmed the selection of five players who will compose the American squad for practice preliminary to the contest with Mexico in April.

GROUP OF FIVE.

The players are Wilmer Allison, of Austin, Texas; Donald Budge, of Oakland, Cal.; and Bryan M. (Betsy) Grant Jr., of Atlanta, ranked one, two and three in the nation—and Gene Mako, of Los Angeles, No. 11, and Johnny Van Ryn, of Philadelphia.

All of them were on the squad last year. Budge, Grant and Mako played against Mexico, but Grant was left off the team when it went to England for the inter-zone finals and challenge round matches. Missing from the list is Sidney Wood, who went abroad last year, but didn't play.

The decision to meet Australia on grass makes Grant's position a trifle difficult. Although he has achieved innumerable "giant-killing" upsets on turf, Grant is essentially a hard court player.

GRANT'S CHANCES.

The chances are he will play against Mexico. Even if he isn't used against Australia he probably will be taken abroad to play in the Wimbledon championships in recognition of his showing in the national tournament last September.

The inclusion again of the blond-haired Mako indicated that the committee hasn't decided whether Allison will be spared for singles or once again cast in the role of a doubles player, playing both singles and doubles, with Van Ryn as his partner. Mako and Budge form the No. 2 ranking team. Budge is definitely slated for a singles assignment.

Australia has nominated for its 1936 team Jack Crawford, Vivian McGrath and Adrian Quist, with W. S. Spong, as non-playing captain. The last time Australia challenged in the North American zone, in 1932, she was represented by Crawford and Harry Hopman. The Aussies won the United States winning, five matches to none.

LEXINGTON, Ky., March 10.—(AP)—A four-team basketball tournament, the winner to represent the third district for the general Olympic tournament, was in prospect today with Western Kentucky, Murray Teachers, Tennessee and North Carolina participating.

This method of determining a representative for the third district, which comprises Kentucky, Alabama, Tennessee, Mississippi, North and South Carolina, Florida and Georgia, was announced by Adolph Rupp, chairman of the district Olympic committee following communication with A. A. Schabinger, of Chicago, general chairman of the Olympics basketball committee.

Rupp, coach of the University of Kentucky, said if all four teams accept, a tournament will be held after he confers further with Schabinger.

Murray and Western were given bids by virtue of the fact that they are finalists in the S. I. A. A. tournament at Jackson. They will meet tonight for the championship.

Tennessee is champion of the Southern conference and North Carolina of the Southern.

Parker Denies Vol Invitation.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., March 10.—(AP)—The University of Tennessee basketball team has not received an invitation to compete in a four-team tournament to determine the Olympic representative for the third district, Colonel Paul B. Parker, athletic director, said today.

"Any invitation will have to be referred to the athletic council," he added.

Parker said Tennessee's basketball team was disbanded and its members will be engaged in school examinations the next 10 days.

"At least they couldn't compete in a tournament during examinations," he added.

Here and There In Sports

By Eddie Brietz.

TAMPA, Fla., March 10.—(AP)—Here is the latest dope on the hold-out situation in the grapefruit loop: Charlie Ruffing may sign with the Yanks before this hits the street. . . . There is no hope for more dough for Ben Chapman. . . . The Dodgers have told Joe Stripp he can sign at their figure or quit baseball. . . . And they hope he don't feel hurt. . . . Bill Werber and the Red Sox are miles and miles apart. . . . Probably the first time Tom Yawkey ever batted an eye at the mere matter of a grand or so. . . . Hal Lee is threatening to quit baseball unless the Sox boost his salary. . . . Which they won't. . . . And Babe Herman is demanding more from the Reds than the Giants pay Mel Ott, or the Bees pay Wally Berger. . . . Which gives Larry McPhail one big laugh.

There is plenty of gloom over Miami because the cops have clamped the lid down on all the gambling joints. . . . Bill Terry holds press conferences at Pensacola aboard a yacht. . . . And always plays to a full house. . . . The gossip here is that Tom Thorpe, who has just been made president steward at Narragansett park, will get a high post at Suffolk Downs. . . . Jimmy Johnson, who once told tailor Gastanaga's managers to toss him into the lake at Central Park, has repeated the invitation.

John Henry Lewis, the former Arizona church sexton, was born under the sign of Taurus, the bull. . . . Negro astrologers say this gives him a strange seven-eleven influence.

Which may be why Jawa is tagged as a "former church sexton." . . . St. Pete Independent interviewed Joe McCarthy and found the Yanks have the biggest bill for baseballs of any club in the American league.

The 1935 bill was $2,000 under that for 1934 because of the absence of Babe Ruth. . . . The Yanks paid $10,000 more for horsehides than the seven other clubs.

Which reminded McCarthy that Tompkins Bill Klem has a bill which was played during an entire game in Philadelphia some years back.

"We never think of starting a game with less than four dozen now," said the Yankee manager.

Moving back to Minnesota in 1932, he got away rather slowly, picked up in 1933 and then introduced the burrhead in 1934 and 1935 with two of the best all-around team (football) has ever known. Minnesota hasn't known defeat for three years in one of the hardest football sections you'll ever see—the Big Ten of the Western conference, with such teams as Pittsburgh and Nebraska on the side.

New entries in the men's division include Forest Fowler-Charles Pearson, Clyde Fortson-O. J. Metcalf, L. M. Tappan-G. H. Tyler, Porter Epperson-Clarence Angier, Jim Corbett-Jim Pfeiffer, Leonard Barnes-Carl Lyon, Joe Chambliss-Archie C. Johnson, L. M. Mory-J. C. McHenry, C. Hollifield-Hollifield, Virgil Travis-Troy Wilson and Walter Bryan-H. C. Daley.

It was the first doubles contest of the season. This event affords bowlers something different in the way of competitive bowling, instead of bowling for just your own individual score you are pulling for your partner to bowl big scores, also. Doubles competition is staged in every big national tournament and is one of the career popular events of the journey.

The popularity of The Constitution doubles tournament has increased each season.

Every former winning team is signed up for this year's event. Every league in the city is represented with several teams.

While you get a look at one of Bierman's hard-charging, hard-blocking, hard-kicking, ripping Minnesota team, you step into a surprise when you meet the head coach.

He is a quiet, shy, retiring leader who ducks the spotlight at every chance. You rarely see him at any large gathering of any kind, because he doesn't like large gatherings of any kind, no matter how many notables are present.

He refuses to weep and sob over impending defeat, and he doesn't like to predict a victory. In fact, he doesn't like to predict at all. Which isn't being so dumb during a football season.

In the midst of this tribute, it would be foolish to say that Bierman accomplishes all these shining results without any material. Minnesota has a rich harvest of material. If Bevans and Lunds and Kowals and Beises and Roosen and Widoth, etc. are not material, then beefsteak isn't a food.

But Minnesota has had material before—such as Herb Josting, Bronko Nagurski, Manders, etc. who were not what you would call anemic.

It remained for Bierman to slip fine smoothness and smartness into this Minnesota mixture and start it in motion.

Last fall from his crack 1934 team, Bierman lost Pugs Lunds, the two Bevans, Stan Kostar, Larson and Tenner, his two ends, Clark, Alphonse, and a few more, including his captain and quarterback, Seidel.

But within two or three weeks, he had another avalanche rolling again, just about as good as his 1934 squad.

What is more, you won't find any Minnesota men weeping about the autumn outlook for 1935. He will have just about as good a team for the next campaign as he had in '34 and '35. And if anyone happens to upset his Gopherian gallop, it will be one of the major shocks from the fall output.

THIRD ALUMNUS. Lowell (Red) Dawson, newly appointed head football coach, is the third alumnus since 1893 to serve in that capacity at Tulane University.

THE RETURN OF THE NORSEMAN.

(In line with the dinner to be given to Bernie Bierman in Minneapolis Wednesday night on his 42d birthday. Bierman's Minnesota Gophers haven't lost a football game since 1932.)

I saw the march of Attila when I was but a lad; I shared a tent with Caesar when his legions pounded Gaul; I crossed the Alps with Hannibal, before the Alps were bad; I'd rather see the Gopher when they start to rush the ball.

I hear the rolling thunder of their sweep along the field; I see the crash of bodies as they strike by flank and line; I see the ghostly outlines of the Norseman's sword and shield As blockers clear the highway where their speedy halfbacks shine.

From T. C. U. to Michigan—from Stanford to Yale, From Oregon to Florida—from Tennessee to Maine, Beware the thrust and parry when the Vikings' on the trail Or Bernie Bierman's Gophers start their push along the plain.

I spent a month with Genghis Kahn, the terror of his time; I saw the Grecian phalanx work in Alexander's day; But when it comes to power, speed, and savage, flowing rhyme I'd rather see the Gophers march in Bernie Bierman's way.

I cheered when Fuzzy-Wuzzy broke the steel-rimmed British war; On Lodi's bridge with Bonaparte I saw him head for fame— But here's to Bernie Bierman and the crown he ought to wear, And here's to Minnesota—and the glory of the game.

Concerning B. Bierman. Last fall, a short while before he died, Dan McGugin, of Vanderbilt, said that, in his opinion, Bernie Bierman, of Minnesota, was close to being the greatest offensive coach he had ever known.

"He is a star defensive coach, too," Dan said, "but on offense he is unbeatable."

Benny Friedman promptly backed McGugin up. "Bierman has the hardest set attack to stop in football today," Benny remarked. "It has more deception—more places to go—and it is always backed up by magnificent blocking."

Still the best all-around team (football) has ever known. Minnesota hasn't known defeat for three years in one of the hardest football sections you'll ever see—the Big Ten of the Western conference, with such teams as Pittsburgh and Nebraska on the side.

New entries in the men's division include Forest Fowler-Charles Pearson, Clyde Fortson-O. J. Metcalf, L. M. Tappan-G. H. Tyler, Porter Epperson-Clarence Angier, Jim Corbett-Jim Pfeiffer, Leonard Barnes-Carl Lyon, Joe Chambliss-Archie C. Johnson, L. M. Mory-J. C. McHenry, C. Hollifield-Hollifield, Virgil Travis-Troy Wilson and Walter Bryan-H. C. Daley.

It was the first doubles contest of the season. This event affords bowlers something different in the way of competitive bowling, instead of bowling for just your own individual score you are pulling for your partner to bowl big scores, also. Doubles competition is staged in every big national tournament and is one of the career popular events of the journey.

The popularity of The Constitution doubles tournament has increased each season.

Every former winning team is signed up for this year's event. Every league in the city is represented with several teams.

While you get a look at one of Bierman's hard-charging, hard-blocking, hard-kicking, ripping Minnesota team, you step into a surprise when you meet the head coach.

He is a quiet, shy, retiring leader who ducks the spotlight at every chance. You rarely see him at any large gathering of any kind, because he doesn't like large gatherings of any kind, no matter how many notables are present.

He refuses to weep and sob over impending defeat, and he doesn't like to predict a victory. In fact, he doesn't like to predict at all. Which isn't being so dumb during a football season.

In the midst of this tribute, it would be foolish to say that Bierman accomplishes all these shining results without any material. Minnesota has a rich harvest of material. If Bevans and Lunds and Kowals and Beises and Roosen and Widoth, etc. are not material, then beefsteak isn't a food.

But Minnesota has had material before—such as Herb Josting, Bronko Nagurski, Manders, etc. who were not what you would call anemic.

It remained for Bierman to slip fine smoothness and smartness into this Minnesota mixture and start it in motion.

Last fall from his crack 1934 team, Bierman lost Pugs Lunds, the two Bevans, Stan Kostar, Larson and Tenner, his two ends, Clark, Alphonse, and a few more, including his captain and quarterback, Seidel.

But within two or three weeks, he had another avalanche rolling again, just about as good as his 1934 squad.

What is more, you won't find any Minnesota men weeping about the autumn outlook for 1935. He will have just about as good a team for the next campaign as he had in '34 and '35. And if anyone happens to upset his Gopherian gallop, it will be one of the major shocks from the fall output.

Major League Training News

PIRATES.

SAN ANTONIO.—The Pittsburgh Pirates are training their guns on southpaw hurlers.

President Bill Bengawer said today: "I hope opposing clubs use just as many southpaws against us this year as possible, for we should be pretty well prepared for them. Manager Pie Traynor now can present five right-handed batters."

GIANTS.

PENSACOLA.—Bill Terry removed the bandage from his injured knee and joined the Giants infield for a short time in fielding practice today. The manager said the knee didn't hurt but it still was swollen and he had trouble getting down for the low ones.

Smoky Joe Martin, up from Nashville, had a long workout at third. His fielding looked good but his stickwork left much to be desired.

YANKEES.

ST. PETERSBURG.—Lou Gehrig and Pitcher Bump Hadley suffered badly twisted ankles today as the Yankees went through a long workout on a muddy field. Lou's injury came after he missed a terrific swipe at the ball in batting practice while Hadley was hurt fielding a grounder.

Joe Di Maggio, high-priced rookie outfielder, gave the day's outstanding exhibition. He smacked a half-dozen clean hits while Monte Pearson and Johnny Murphy tried their best to halt him, then went out to center field and rifled throws to the plate.

SENATORS.

ORLANDO.—Manager Bucky Harris is giving Jesse Hill the same liberties on the bases he gave Bill Werber two years ago at Boston—and he hopes this will have the same result on Hill it did on Werber.

Given free rein, Werber won the American league base stealing championship.

RED SOX.

SARASOTA.—Jimmy Fox, Red Sox first baseman, found his batting eye for the first time this season today. He knocked three homers over the left-field fence.

The first of Fox's drives might have been called foul by a finicky umpire. The second was a high looper, with the wind behind it. But the third was a stinging line drive which was still soaring as it cleared the fence.

BROOKLYN.

CLEARWATER, Fla.—Van Lingle Mungo, Brooklyn mound ace, ended a long holdout today by signing his contract after a conference with Joseph Gillespie, president of the Dodgers.

While the terms were not announced it was understood that the contract called for the compromise figure of $11,500. Mungo originally was offered $11,000, an increase of $1,000 over last year's salary, but held out for $12,000. A few days ago the club offered to split the difference.

BROWNS.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla.—Manager Rogers Hornsby was unworried today at the continued absence of Jack Burns, the Browns' holdout first baseman.

"Who'll take his place?" the Rajah queried back. "Me—or Hal Worrick." Warnock, an outfielder, came to the Browns at the tail end of last season from the University of Arizona.

Dean's Comebacks Far From Dizzy

BRADENTON, Fla., March 10.—(AP)—Informed tonight that Tony Faeth, St. Paul pitcher, was among those wanting to punch his nose. Dizzy Dean, the St. Louis Cardinal's ace holdout, said Faeth also wanted to be a pitcher but was still "deep in the bushes" with little likelihood of getting out.

"That guy should take up boxing or something if he intends to get anywhere," Dean declared. "Why he can't even get any publicity unless he talks about me."

Faeth had taken offense to Dean's indifference during an exhibition game at St. Paul last year.

CANT' TEACH NOW. MIAMI, Fla., March 10.—(AP)—A dapper, self-styled tennis instructor, listed in court records as Robert Howard, 32, was sentenced today to serve 30 years in state prison for Miami Beach burglaries in which jewels valued at $50,000 were taken.

REVOLTA, PICARD WIN OVER GHEZZI AND CRAIG WOOD

Four-Ball Champions Continue Winning Ways at Miami.

MIAMI, Fla., March 10.—(AP)—Johnny Revolta and Henry Picard, the 1935 winners, gave adequate evidence today they were still the team to beat in the 1936 edition of Miami's annual international four-ball golf matches.

Playing the 30 holes their match lasted in 11 strokes under par, the Milwaukee star, reigning P. G. A. champion, and his Hershey, Pa. teammate, unashingly defeated the Deal, N. J., combination of Vic Ghezzi and Craig Wood, 7 and 6, to enter the semi-finals of the $4,000 invitation classic.

Their opponents tomorrow will be veteran Willie MacFarlane, the former Tuckahoe, N. Y., schoolmaster who registers there days from Old Oak, N. Y., and his playing partner, Willie Klein, of Wheatley Hills, L. I.

Trailing throughout their quarter-final match with Frank Wood, of Chicago, and Willy Cox, of Bethesda, Md., MacFarlane and Klein managed to square matters at the 35th hole, halved the 36th in birdie 4's and ran it out at the 37th where both their opponents' putts for the half rolled off line.

In the other semi-final match, Gene Sarazen, of Brookfield Center, Conn., and Jimmy Hines, of Garden City, L. I., face the all-Scotch combination of Tommy Armour, of Boca Raton, Fla., and Bobby Cruikshank, of Richmond, Virginia.

After "blowing" the three-hole lead they held at the end of 27 holes of their match with Harry Cooper, of Chicago, and Jimmy Thomson, of Ridgewood, N. J., Sarazen and Hines just pulled it out at the 38th where the "old maestro," his youthful partner's putt having missed, tanned an eight-footer for the needed birdie 4, winning 1 up.

Armour and Cruikshank, who rallied in unparalleled fashion to save their first-round match, got out in front of the favored team of Horton Smith, Chicago, and Paul Kunyan, White Plains, N. Y., and, refusing to let down, won 3 and 2.

EMORY TANKMEN DEFEAT Y. M. C. A.

Emory University's Blue and Gold swimmers rose up, or rather dived under in their might Tuesday afternoon and upset the powerful Atlanta Y. M. C. A. aggregation, 43-41, to win their second victory of the current season in the most exciting meet of the year in the Emory pool.

The outcome was in doubt until the final of the medley relay, was completed. Dodd, Emory anchor man, beat Denny, of the "Y," by a scant margin in this event, clinching a victory for Coach Hugh Shackelford's merman.

Grady Clay, Emory's undefeated breast stroke star, and Walters, crack "Y" sprint man, tied for high point on honors with 12 points each. Walters won the 50 and 100-yard free style events and was anchor man in the winning free style relay quartet.

Clay, one of the south's finest breast stroke artists, won his specialty and placed first in the diving, besides swimming on the winning medley team.

In turning back the "Y," the Emory natators reaped some measure of revenge for their defeat at the hands of Georgia Tech Saturday, inasmuch as the Tech squad bowed to the "Y" in their next match. In their next meet, the Emoryites will face Tusculum College in the Emory tank Friday afternoon at 3:30.

Summary: 200-yard free style relay: First, "Y," (Fort, Allcorn, Denny, Walters); second, Emory; third, Deacon, (McIntire, Brumby). Time, 2:42.5.

100-yard breast stroke: First, Clay, Emory; second, Black, Emory; third, Mohan, "Y." Time, 1:16.5.

100 and back stroke: First, Wagner, "Y," second, Jones, Emory; third, Ammon, "Y." Time, 1:24.

50-yard free style: First, Walters, "Y," second, Denny, "Y," third, Deacon, "Y." Time, 28.4.

400-yard free style: First, Walters, "Y," second, Denny, "Y," third, Brumby, Emory. Time, 5:32.

100-yard free style: First, Walters, "Y," second, Denny, "Y," third, Brumby, Emory. Time, 28.4.

Diving: First, Clay, Emory; second, George, "Y," third, Ammon, "Y." Score, 101.2.

200-yard free style: First, Hotch, Emory; second, McIntire, Emory; third, Allcorn, "Y." Time, 2:41.5.

200-yard medley relay: First, Emory, (Jones, Walters, Denny, Clay). Time, 2:14.4. (Wagner, Mohan, Denny). Time, 2:14.4.

Emory Wrestling Will Close Today.

Emory University's annual all-campus and freshman wrestling tournament will close this afternoon with five finals matches scheduled for the Emory gym, according to the schedule released Tuesday by Lawrence Wynn, wrestling manager.

The finals will find the following grapplers facing each other for championships in the all-campus tourney: 120 and under: David vs. Sewell.

130-140 Pleming vs. Robert. 140-150 Klausman vs. Jones. 170 and over, Hughes vs. Johnson.

"Little Edgar" Johnson, 150-160-pound artist, successfully defended his title Tuesday afternoon by pinning Ed Turner in the finals match in his class.

George Dunlap Jr. Retains Golf Crown.

PINEHURST, N. C., March 10.—(AP)—George T. Dunlap Jr., of Norfolk, Va., retained his title as amateur champion by winning the Pinehurs Golf crown for a third successive year.

Dunlap, twice a winner, walked away with the golf organization's annual tournament here yesterday by posting a 77 for a 72-hole total of 292, 16 strokes ahead of the field.

Low net honors went to C. P. Adams, of Worcester, Mass., and S. M. Paterson, of Boston, both of whom turned in 300's.

FIRST TICKET.

MACON, Ga., March 10.—(AP)—The No. 1 season ticket to home games of the Macon Peaches has been delivered as usual to City Alderman H. D. Chapman. Because Chapman was confined to his bed with automobile accident injuries, however, it was necessary for a member of the Junior Chamber of Commerce to visit his home and present the ticket book in person.

ness. One of the linemen on our team was none other than Professor Spain, member of the faculty and a man who had reached about 35 and had just begun to grow a double chin; he was at least fat and had soft girlish skin. He drew the great misfortune of playing directly opposite one of the Mercer "ringers," who was a sawmill hand working about 10 miles out of Macon and notorious for his great physical strength and unusual feats due to his ability to sustain long physical hardship. It was a cruel performance, as Professor Spain was truly game and certainly did not wish to give up in the presence of his students, with the result that he was black and blue all over and one eye closed, and the boys had a holiday from his classes for at least a week after we returned to Atlanta.

"All these activities took place before the advent of General Leonard Wood and his three soldiers, who did so much for the school along athletic lines and, to a degree, brought in revenue which provided for better equipment and some much-needed coaching by more experienced and older heads. Such of our athletic equipment as we were fortunate enough to secure was quite crude. This particular game of football was played with a large, round, black, heavy ball, easily knocked from a man's grasp, causing many uncertainties and turn in fortune of a game. We had simple, easily learned signals given by calling a series of numbers disguised in manifold ways, and which were effective and unfathomed by the enemy."

Alack and alas, the young intellectuals in the classrooms no longer get such vacations. But even so, I must, at this late date, doff the old hat to Professor Spain. Playing a football game after one has reached 35 and grown a double chin, is the acme of heroism. And there is no mistake about that.

If I were Mr. Lake Russell, coach of the Mercer team today, I would see if that sawmill man had any grandsons. They may be high school graduates and eligible to play under modern rules.

"The good old days" must have been rather strenuous at that, don't you think?

THE OLD AND THE NEW.

The late Reynolds (Tic) Tichenor, who played at Auburn and at Georgia a few years after the pioneer days of which Mr. Black writes so entertainingly, used to say the old-timer would not have lasted one quarter in modern football. This seems rather obvious from Engineer Black's reports. Although, at that, I would cast one vote for Professor Spain.

It was Tic's idea that the old-timers didn't train as they do today. The game was considerably slower. There was not as much fast action. Most of the games were easy ones. Only one or two contests during the year provided real competition

Information

CLOSING HOURS

Want Ads are accepted up to 9 p. m. for publication the next day. The closing hour for the Sunday edition is 6:30 p. m. Saturday.

CLASSIFIED RATES

Daily and Sunday rates per line for consecutive insertions:

One time 27 cents
Three times 10 cents
Seven times 17 cents
Minimum, 2 lines (12 words).

In estimating the space to an ad figure six average words as a line. Ads ordered for three or more days and stopped before expiration will only be charged for the number of times the ad appeared and adjustments made at the rate earned.

Errors in advertisements should be reported immediately. The Constitution will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion.

All want ads are subject to their proper classification. The Constitution reserves the right to revise or reject any advertisement.

Ads ordered by telephone are accepted from persons listed in the telephone or city directory on memorandum charge only. In this case the advertiser is expected to remit promptly.

TARZAN AND THE LEOPARD MEN No. 63

The captive Tarzan did not fear death, for the Grim Shadow was his daily companion. His regret was that if he died now, there would be no one to combat the Leopard Men, that clan of jungle gangsters who terrorized and extorted tribute from peaceful peoples.

The keen-eyed Jungle Lord watched every opportunity as the men monsters marched him and The Kid at high speed through the forest; but not once did fate offer him a chance to escape by the exercise of his quick wits and strong muscles. Fortune had deserted him . . .

Nor were his would-be rescuers making any progress. Old Timer quickly lost the trail of the Leopard Men. He was a poor tracker. His centuries-old heritage of civilization had robbed him of the faculty by which the beasts and primitive men trail their quarry . . .

Tarzan's black friend Orando, accompanied by Nikma the monkey, followed the trail easily enough. But the warrior knew it was useless to pit his lone strength against the army of Leopard Men, who wielded with fanatic fury the dreadful Talons of Death.

OUR FINAL STATE- MENT

When this appears in this morning's Constitution, the voting will have started in the Fulton County Primary for the election of County Officers.

For myself and my Deputies I have only this to say, that we are absolutely confident of re-election. The argument put forward by our several opponents that we have "served long enough" has completely fallen flat.

Instead of being a good reason to turn us out, the fact that we have served the people of Fulton County to their satisfaction in this important office for twenty years is the strongest of all arguments in favor of continuing us on the job.

Our majority today will depend on the size of the vote. Atlanta newspapers, civic organizations and other agencies for good government have recently joined in a campaign to persuade all voters on the registration list to go to the polls and cast their ballots. In this we join 100 per cent. The larger the vote that can be turned out in this and all other elections, the higher will be the standard of public service in general.

The belief that my Deputies and myself will be re-elected is so widespread and prevailing throughout Fulton County that some citizens who favor our re-election may neglect to vote upon the idea that we do not need their votes. Frankly, this is our only danger . . . that is to say, over-confidence on the part of our supporters.

Therefore, not only in the public interest, which is paramount, but in our own interest, we earnestly request every citizen who is registered to go today to the polls and cast his or her ballot. We are grateful beyond words for the expressions of approval of our service and support of our re-election which have come to us voluntarily from every voting precinct in Fulton County.

Respectfully submitted,
James I. Lowry
And His Deputies

Unlucky Rendezvous Brings Leggers' Woe
When bootleggers meet bootleggers, it really should not be in front of Frank B. Clark's house.

Clark is an alcohol tax investigator and Marvin Oxford is in jail today under $500 for making that mistake.

"I was sitting in my house about 8 o'clock last night," said Clark yesterday, "when I heard two cars drive up and stop. Then there was a clatter and a grunting and a heaving that any revenue agent would recognize."

"I got my gun and my flashlight and went outside. One of the fellows ran but here is the other one. I grabbed him, 87 gallons of liquor and two automobiles."

United States Commissioner Ed S. Griffith assessed the bond.

Clark begged newspapermen not to reveal his address because, he said, "I grabbed two fellows in 1929 just that way and you never can tell when it will happen again if they don't know where I live."

SENATOR FAVORS ROAD FUND PLAN

George and Russell Interested in City-County Proposal.

COLUMBUS, Ga., March 10.—(AP) Senator Richard B. Russell Jr., informed the city commission today that he had submitted to the federal bureau of roads the Columbus proposal for allocating Georgia highway funds that are tied up direct to cities and counties.

At the same time, Senator Walter F. George wrote "If the Georgia situation is not adjusted I shall be glad to see what can be done to get the lines straightened" in a resolution passed by the city commission.

Representative B. T. Castellow, of this district, wrote the "deeply interested" and that the commission suggestion "will be borne earnestly in mind."

Several other cities and counties in Georgia have asked the congressional delegation to take action in securing direct allotments for cities and counties from the road fund, so as not to delay highway work in Georgia.

COL. PAINE IS NAMED AS ATTACHE AT ROME

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP) Colonel George H. Paine, of the field artillery, now stationed in the army's Hawaiian department, was designated today by the War Department as new military air attaché at Rome, succeeding Colonel Jerome G. Pillow, whose term there is expiring shortly.

Colonel Paine, whose home is in Seaton, Pa., was ordered to sail from Honolulu on July 2, and to come to Washington for temporary duty in the office of the chief of staff before proceeding to his new assignment. He also will act as American military attaché in Tientsin.

Colonel Pillow, whose home is in Helena, Ark., will return to the United States for a new assignment as soon as he is relieved by Colonel Paine.

TENNESSEE WOMAN KILLED ON HIGHWAY

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., March 10.—(AP) Mrs. Sybil Johnson, 30, of Lone Oak, near Summit, Tenn., was almost instantly killed near her home today when struck by an automobile.

County officers said witnesses told them Mrs. Johnson was crossing the Lee highway with a bucket of water at the time.

No arrests were made.

Preacher Shows Bandit How Army Game Works

HOUSTON, Texas, March 10.—(AP) The Rev. Clarence Lewis Austin "was in the regular army too long" to let anyone work the "old army game" on him, he told police.

So when two men robbed him of $15 in a hotel here he knew what to do.

First he told police. Then he went hunting. So he returned to the police station with $15 in one hand and one of the robbers in the other.

Palatka Invites F. D. R.

PALATKA, Fla., March 10.—President Roosevelt was invited today by Mayor John E. Campbell to visit the Palatka Ravine gardens, beautification project in which is erected a shaft to the President, during his visit to the state this month.

Scott, a former union bricklayer, was shot to death a few weeks ago when he sought to arrest Turner for questioning in connection with a street car holdup.

THIEVES LOOT SAFE LEFT OPEN IN STORE

Thieves who worked while the cashier was in the rear of the store, yesterday afternoon took between $50 and $60 from the open safe of the Head Candy Company, at 594 Means street, N. Y., police reported.

R. E. Dunn, the cashier, told police a negro entered the building with an order for some candy. While he and the customer were in the rear of the store filling the order, he said, someone rifled the cash drawer of the office safe, which had been left open.

TWO GIRLS DISAPPEAR EN ROUTE TO CLASSES

Two girls from the Atlanta Home for Girls were reported missing by police yesterday. The girls are said to have left the home on their way to school yesterday morning and have not been seen since.

They are Daphne Banks, 13, who was described as having brown hair and eyes, five feet tall, and weighing 100 pounds, and Emily Bradford, 13, five feet, one inch tall. The latter girl wore a pink dress when last seen.

YUGOSLAVIA APPROVES $1,000,000 ARMS HIKE

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, March 10.—(AP) Parliament approved by acclamation today a budget of $40,000,000 for military expenses, an increase of a million over last year.

War Minister General Lyusimir Maritch said the international situation necessitated the increase.

GEN. HAGOOD PROBE IS SOUGHT IN HOUSE

Rep. May Offers Bill; Man-neuver Raises Doubt It Will Reach Floor.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP) A house investigation of the removal of Major General Johnson Haggood from his command of the eighth corps area following his criticism of WPA funds as "stage money" was sought today in a resolution introduced by tucks.

Whether the resolution would reach the floor became a matter of speculation, however, after the house leadership referred it to the rules committee instead of to the military affairs committee of which May is a member.

Some Haggood supporters in the house previously had expressed hope that with Chairman McNair, democrat, South Carolina, and other military committee members favoring the general, the investigation proposal would fare better there than did a similar measure voted down by the senate military committee.

ATLANTIC AIR SERVICE FORECAST IN SUMMER

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP) Eugene L. Vidal, director of air commerce, told an American Legion meeting last night semi-weekly trans-Atlantic flights between Great Britain and the United States will start this summer on regular schedule.

The British Imperial Airways and Pan-American Airways each will send two planes a week across the Atlantic, Vidal said, while German airlines will use catapult ships in the vicinity of the Azores.

The planes will use the Newfoundland and Ireland route in summer and the Azores and Bermuda route in winter.

France plans eventually to make the Atlantic flight in a single jump, Vidal said, while German airlines will use catapult ships in the vicinity of the Azores.

BABY GLOBE TROTTER EN ROUTE TO ATLANTA

Mothers two-year-old Jean McElroy, youngest passenger ever to cross the Pacific ocean unaccompanied, left San Pedro, Cal., last night with her father, John H. McElroy, for the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John H. McElroy, of 897 Erin avenue.

Jean's mother died in Shanghai last summer of pneumonia, while her father was recuperating here. After an illness that forced him to leave Shanghai, McElroy had not seen his daughter since she was 10 days old until he met her in California yesterday.

MAN DENIES MOTIVE IN WOMAN'S DEATH

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 10.—(AP) Ronald Parsons, 24-year-old crane operator, awaited arraignment tonight on a charge he killed attractive Dorothy Lee, whose mutilated body was found in a country club ravine.

Prosecutor J. Blackburn Watts and state police took Parsons to the spot where Robert Hoffman, 13-year-old boy, found the 24-year-old woman's body Sunday.

Watts said Parsons admitted in a formal statement that he killed the woman at the end of an automobile shaft to the President, during his visit to the state this month.

State police said they learned he met the young woman at a beer garden and both left in a car after several drinks.

Coroner J. E. Roberts said she died from shock and loss of blood after she had been mutilated.

Hopkins To Identify Projects With Design

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP) WPA Administrator Harry L. Hopkins set about today to identify his projects so they can not be mistaken.

A red, white and blue sign has been designed and will be placed on all the works progress projects. "Frequently people observe activities under private contract, or municipal, or county enterprises, and make critical comment about the WPA," Hopkins explained. "We want our projects marked so that if anybody wants to see them, they can be sure of what they are looking at."

The signs bear the words:

FEDERAL WEED LAW PREDICTED BY BAILEY

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP) Senator Bailey, democrat, North Carolina, expressed the opinion today that a bill to authorize interstate tobacco control compact would be passed by the senate.

Bailey made the prediction in reply to an inquiry by Claude T. Hall, president of the North Carolina Tobacco Growers' Association.

The measure now is before the senate agriculture committee and Bailey said he expected it to be reported favorably by the committee "at any moment."

Under the bill's provisions, states would be permitted to enter into agreements to control the production of the crop.

THREE STORES BROKEN BY THIEVES ON ROOF

Roof-treading thieves were active in Atlanta again early yesterday, entering three stores on Washington street by breaking through the upper stories.

Delicatessen stores at 610 and 612 Washington street were looted, $2 and $2, respectively, reports showed. A burglar alarm at the latter place summoned police.

In the meanwhile the burglars had broken into a soda company at 512 Washington street. A radio and other merchandise taken from downstairs was found in the attic by police.

The burglars entered the building through a window in the rear, a watch and a knife, police said.

POLICE IDENTIFICATION ACTIVITIES INCREASE

Activity of the identification bureau of the Atlanta police department in February showed an increase nearly double that of the same month last year, according to figures revealed yesterday by Captain Ben Seabrook.

A total of 221 persons were photographed and fingerprinted during the month, according to the bureau, as compared with 112 during the same period in 1935. Identification through previous records was made of 56 accused persons, only 30 like identifications being made during February last year, figures showed.

The brother, who served overseas in 1917 and was last heard from in Germany in 1921, wrote from New York recently to McNamara's former home in Lumber Bridge, S. C., seeking information concerning his family. The letter was forwarded to Detective McNamara, who immediately replied, inviting his brother to visit him in Atlanta.

NEGRO IN TENNESSEE GETS DEATH IN SLAYING

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 10.—(AP) James Turner, 24-year-old negro, was convicted by a jury today for the slaying of police patrolman Roy A. Scott. The jury faced punishment at death in the electric chair.

Scott, a former union bricklayer, was shot to death a few weeks ago when he sought to arrest Turner for questioning in connection with a street car holdup.

Y. STRIKE RESUMED; OPERATORS ASK TRUCE

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP) A really board spokesman tonight offered union recognition and arbitration of minimum pay to service strikers in an attempt to end the 10-day walk-out.

The offer followed extension of the strike during the day to skyscrapers in the Grand Central, Times Square and Columbus Circle districts of midtown, and to the Brighton Beach section of Brooklyn, although the operators declared the fresh walkouts had been ineffective.

The board's attorney, Walter Gordon Merritt, said that if the union accepted, the board would recommend to its members a three-year extension of the 1934 agreement, known as the Curran award, plus arbitration of minimum pay now and in 1937 and 1938.

This agreement, he said, provided recognition of the union for collective bargaining, non-discrimination against union members, replacement of union members only by other union members and arbitration of hours and wages.

Silent on Closed Shop.
No mention was made of the closed shop issue, the principal point of difference between the two sides.

Jerry J. Horan, national president of the Building Service Employees International Union, presided at a mass meeting of strikers. A police escort accompanied the strikers to the meeting.

At a similar meeting last week James J. Bambrick, local union head, made remarks District Attorney William C. Dodge considered inflammatory.

Bambrick, who modified his demand for a closed shop, 48-hour week, and a $2-a-week pay raise in answer to Jerry J. Horan's plea for arbitration, reiterated today that the owners had given a "qualified acceptance" to the mayor's plea. Bambrick said the acceptance "qualified it to death."

Mayor Commended.
The city affairs committee, in a statement signed by John Haynes Holmes, John Lovejoy Elliott, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise and Frederick L. Guggenheimer, entered the battle today with commendation of Mayor La Guardia's action in seeking to arbitrate the strike.

The committee declared the mayor "is entitled to the moral backing of every citizen who believes that no group of men, however large their possessions or realty holdings, has the right in the spirit of obstinate indifference to the welfare of New York to compel prolongation of a strike which means hardship and misery to many thousands of people."

"The mayor has done his part and done it well," the committee declared, "and he has suggested a public meeting to ratify his efforts for peace."

"Gunmen in Building."
At the same time, striking employees of a Park avenue apartment building charged that "Pennsylvania gunmen" were being packed into the building by the operators.

"Believe me they are tough-looking," said C. E. Reilly, spokesman for 144 street, "and they are not only here now. They are not only here but they are everywhere."

Bambrick claimed a great opportunity for the new strike order, but some buildings reported that even known union men in the midtown section had refused to leave their posts.

"We just start in a great war and keep rolling along," said Bambrick. "The night police compilation of strike data tonight showed these changes."

A total of 3,005 buildings affected as against 2,231 this morning. Settlements in 222 cases against 201 this morning.

A total of 203 arrests since the strike began, no arrests having been made today.

Apartment Robbed.
The 16 elevators of the 26-story General Electric building said to be halted at once when a striking employee pulled their central power switch. All stopped at floor levels except one, the 14th floor, where a man and a mechanic said. The operator, alone in the car, was extracted.

The strike missed the Empire State Chrysler building and struck the Paramount building, which towers above Times Square. The Loew building and the Strand theater were affected as was the noted Palace theater.

The building where the realty advisory board has been meeting was called out and some employees left, although the board said they did so reluctantly.

Police, who have arrested a great many strikers and sympathizers, were having trouble with the other side also.

An unidentified replacement elevator operator was sought in connection with theft of a mink coat and jewelry valued at $55,000 from the apartment of Dr. and Mrs. Kurt M. Simon on Park Avenue. Reports to police said the man ran his car to the Simon's floor, unlocked the door while they slept and left with the coat and jewels.

The union today caused to be distributed several thousand pamphlets urging strikers to withdraw their money from banks and to stop paying insurance premiums.

"Banks and insurance companies, the real principals in this elevator strike, are resolved to break the union and they don't care how much of your money they spend doing it," the pamphlet said. It was unsigned but Bambrick assumed authority for it.

Reminded of the federal statute forbidding any action calculated to start a bank run, Bambrick said: "I won't give a damn. I'll take my chances."

SHIP SUBSIDY MEASURE POSTPONEMENT HINTED

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP) Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the majority leader, told reporters today that the Senate would postpone the ship subsidy legislation delay adjournment of the senate.

His comment was made as the senate commerce committee went into late session to complete hearings on rival bills.

Proponents of the legislation were working against another tentative "deal" because the President's authority to cancel present ocean-mail contracts expires March 31. This was extended last session when ship subsidy legislation failed.

TRADE PACK WITH U. S. IS RATIFIED BY CANADA

OTTAWA, March 10.—(AP) The house of commons tonight ratified the Canadian-U. S. trade agreement, a trade agreement, by a vote of 175 to 39.

The vote followed two weeks of debate in which conservatives vigorously opposed the agreement and liberals lent strong support to the reciprocal treaty.

Premier King brought the discussion to a conclusion with a ringing bell as observers predicted the majority vote for ratification.

Upon final approval, the agreement will be the first pact of reciprocity formally in effect between Canada and the United States in 70 years. Some provisions have been in effect since January 1.

U. S. PLANS TO LIMIT STAMP PURCHASES

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP) The Bureau of Internal Revenue has determined that the largest of all United States revenue stamps—the now useless potato tax stamp—should not be cornered by some ambitious stamp dealer or collector.

It announced today that not more than 50 of any one variety of the stamps will be sold to a single individual, and that the stamps will range in value from 3-cent to $1.50, with the entire "set" costing $5.16.

The stamps never were on sale except in portions of Florida and Alabama. They were withdrawn from sale and immediately prices to collectors rose to $100 a set.

The bureau has adopted the same rules as the philatelic agency—remittance of money order with return postage and registration extra. They will remain on sale until July 1 next.
